Farmers To Benefit From Tax Reform

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG—Farmers may benefit as much as anyone from the proposed tax reform bill now in conference committee in the state legislature. The adminstration's proposals will give counties in the Commonwealth the option to shift property taxes partly to income and sales taxes. But there's a big catch. If the pending legislation is not passed by the end of the month, it may never be passed. The new legislature elected this week may not be willing to make the effort to get the reform passed. In addition, a few key senators and representatives who have worked for tax reform for many years retire at the end of this session.

Earl F. Gohl, Jr., deputy secretary, state department of community affairs, said this week that the pending legislation could be expected to reduce property taxes by 30 percent in areas that opted to use its provisions. Nuisance taxes such as per capita taxes, occupational priviledge and occupational assessment taxes could also be eliminated. Gohl called these the most unfair taxes in the world. "You're assessed a number and you get a bill," Gohl said.

In counties like Lancaster or Berks with the tourist industry and shopping malls, sums of money come into the area from people who use the local services but contribute nothing to the tax base. Police protection costs and water and sewage bills increase because of the influx of people. But property owners, including farmers, foot the bill. In these areas, the adminstration thinks a sales tax would help distribute the tax burden.

And John Stauffer (R-19), Chester County's strong proponent of tax reform who had earlier said he was totally opposed to a sales tax, said Friday moring that he would go along with an optional sales tax in the spirit of compromise. "Obviously, before I retire, I would like to successfully accomplish the tax reform I have worked on for over a quarter of a centery," Stauffer said. "But I want true tax reform. Reform with no major tax revenue increases.

"A lot of people with many dif-

Good News Greets Farm Credit Stockholders

BY PAT PURCELL

HERSHEY (Dauphin) — Lancaster Farm Credit Service stockholders gathered on Wednesday for lunch at the Hersey Lodge to hear some good news from Chief Executive Officer Scott Owens and from the keynote speaker, Dr. John F. Marten, staff economist for the Farm Journal.

"We are the strongest and most progressive Farm Credit branch," said Owens, "But Farm Credit will be challenged to meet the needs of the future. We will be seeing some changes to meet the changing needs of our farmers. And we are ready for that."

Those farmers who previously were not required to pay taxes are feeling the affects of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and having to pay, according to Owens and Farm Credit offers their services to help the farmers ease this financial demand.

"We are doing a lot of work helping farmers with risk management and we may be doing a lot more of that in the future. Our mission at Farm Credit is to improve the income and the well-being of our stockholders and helping them manage risk is one way we can do that," explained Owens.

Owens told stockholders that Lancaster Farm Credit is solid because the people it serves are solid. Farm Credit makes changes to meet demands of a changing economy Owens said and hopes the changes do not disrupt the operations of their stockholders.

"You've asked us to reduce staff turnover so we have modified salaries and made some other changes so that you will see the same loan officer on your farm, the same loan processor and the same secretary when you come into our office," said Owens.

Dr. John F. Marten, staff economist with the Farm Journal for 11 years presented his case for what he believes to be healthy farm economy for many. With agricultural debt down by 30 percent from just 3 years ago, the farm community is in pretty good shape. But although the farm economy may seem somewhat solid and stable ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed out the day fractionally higher with losses in the deferreds of 3/4 cents. Buying interest throughout the session was light with many players sidelined in advance of the crop report. Today's lower opening was dictated by the lack of any firm export commitments. Generic certificates were bid mostly steady to slightly lower. Today's USDA Crop Report, which was bearishly construed by floor traders and analysts, showed total production at 4.671 billion bushels which was up from the October 12 report of 4.553 billion bushels. Ending stocks increased from 1,407 billion bushels to 1.446 billion bushels.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean prices closed from 1 cent lower on the January option to 1/2 cent higher on the September option. Trading remained confined to narrow ranges today with some short covering featured late in the session. The lack of a export confirmation opened the pit under pressure but news midsession that Spain and Yugoslavia had purchased beans helped to strengthen prices along with sharply higher foreign currencies. Today's USDA Crop Report showed production at 1.512 billion bushels, which was up from the October 12th report at 1.501 billion bushels. Floor traders and analysts termed the report neutral for beans. Ending stocks figures were unchanged from the previous report at 125 million bushels.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled mostly lower today after a fairly choppy session featuring positioning in advance of today's USDA Supply/demand and crop reports. Some support was linked to ideas that China and the Soviet Union would soon be granted export bonus offers along with news that Iraq would receive credit terms on wheat and what flower. Aggressive sellers were absent today with profit-taking limited in front of today's reports. Today's USDA Ending stocks report reported wheat unchanged at 528 million bushels from last months report

Trading activity was irregular and a bit more cautiousness was noted as the weekend approached. Legs and leg quarters were more available, wings were generally steady and gizzards were firm and difficult to locate.

Take Your Seat, The Performance Is About To Begin.

You'll applaud the performance of Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, G-4626 and G-4446 when the curtain falls at harvest time.

A top choice for shelled grain or ear corn in 110 to 120-day maturity areas, G-4543 produces maximum yields even at lower populations. In Delaware hybrid field corn trials, it topped the field with 148.4 bu./A.

G-4626 has it all in a 115 to 120-day maturity hybrid—fast dry-down, outstanding stay-green, superior standability, excellent plant health and exceptional yields. In Delaware trials, G-4626 produced yields up to 200.9 bu./A.

G-4446 delivers superior late season standability, excellent grain quality and high test weights. A multi-purpose, widely adapted hybrid, G-4446 produced a state record 252.4 bu./A. in the 1986 Pa. Five-Acre Corn Club competition.

Get your ticket to superior performance by contacting your local Hoffman sales representative or our Landisville office. Call toll free 1-800-233-0137. In PA: 1-800-732-0456.

Ask the Old Farmer: We repaired the leaky faucet in the older home we purchased, but the stains from the leak remain in the bathtub. None of the cleaners we have tried will remove the stain. Any suggestions? T.B., South Paris, Maine. Get some Kool-Aid, the powdered lemonade kind. Dampen a sponge; apply some to the stain and scrub it off. You can also use fresh peroxide and cream of tartar. Make a paste of them and cover the stain. Drop two or three drops of ammonia onto the paste, leave it for an hour or so, then wash off.

Home Hints: Plant paperwhite narcissus now for Christmas bloom.

with world production reduced slightly. The December option traded in a 5 cent range today with the settlement midrange at $4.25-1/2.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live and feeder cattle weakened today on selling in response to sharply lower pork complex quotes. Limited short covering late session helped to elevate prices off session lows. Weakening cash fundamentals added further pressure along with sluggish seasonal demand and unprofitable packer margins. Feeder cattle took their cues from live cattle and posted losses from 25 to 68 points. December live cattle closed 80 points lower at $73.02/cwt with heavy professional bear spreading featured versus the August.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE: 11/07/88-$81.10 dn $ .01.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to lower futures-steady to lower.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures prices plunged lower today in heavy volume as spillover from pork bellies and deteriorating cash fundamentals pressured. Further pressure was linked to losses in the products with heavy kills this week adding to the selling trend. Yesterday's bearish weekly out-of-town storage report, which reported higher than expected net in movement added further pressure. December closed out the day 138 points lower at $40.62/cwt while February bellies lost 165 points.

OPINION

Something You Should Support

The proposed tax reform bill is now in conference committee in the state legislature. This proposal would give counties in the Commonwealth the option to shift property taxes partly to income and sales taxes.

No one knows better than farmers do how burdensome property taxes are in relationship to farm income. Especially in the southeast part of the state, tourists, shopping malls and just a general increase of citizenry have increased the use of local services. And property owners, including farmers, foot the bill.

While legislation to accomplish tax reform is now pending, major obstacles before this reform can be passed. Compromises must be made and the final bill brought up for a vote--before the end of November. That's right. The present legislature has only six working days left.

To exert pressure in legislators, Governor Robert Casey has designated Tuesday, November 15 as Legislative Rally Day. While we know the nitty-gritty work to get legislation passed goes on in the trenches behind the scenes, yet we think farmers should take the opportunity to visit their senators and representatives on Tuesday. Farmers do have a lot to gain from property tax reform. And we find both sides are attempting to get reform without raising windfall taxes at the expense of the payers. If a large group of farmers show up on the Capitol steps, Congressmen may get the message and work a little harder to get the job done.

So, if you're a farmer, here's something you should support. That will mean a trip to Harrisburg on Tuesday. But you might also get the chance to meet the governor.

NOW IS THE TIME

To "Push The Pencil"

Farm records are a very important part of modern farming; they are needed for tax purposes and for the benefit of farm planning. Since we are at the end of the cropping season, and the end of the calendar year, it might be a good time to do some office work and determine the best enterprises for the past year. You'll need to consider any unusual circumstances.

The time you spend in analyzing farm records, and in planning the future based upon these records, should be very worthwhile. Major decisions are hard to make but are very important in today's farming. We hope that good farm records can contribute in these decisions.

To Repair Machinery During The Winter

Most of the outside field work is finished for this year. I also know that every farm has machinery that needs repair and service. If you are planning to have this done at your machinery dealer, it would be wise to contact him in the near future so it's on his work schedule. I'm aware of the spring rush next March and April; and I know your local serviceman will appreciate the work during the fall and into the long winter days. It can also save time in case parts need to be ordered to complete the job. The objective is to be planning for this repair work now. Have it done so your machinery is ready to go early next spring.

To Knock Out Those Alfalfa Weeds

Winter weeds in our alfalfa fields are every bit as predictable as summer weeds are in corn and soybeans.

Colder weather is here and hay fields are dormant. We now have a choice to use different herbicides, depending largely on the kinds of weeds present that need to be knocked out. The most commonly found winter annuals at this time include chickweed and the four mustard weeds -- shepherds purse, pepperweed, pennycress and yellow rocket. Also, expect to see seedlings of other weeds plus some tough perennials, too. It pays to know your weeds present before selecting the herbicide.

Check the "Agronomy Guide" and READ THE LABEL on the container or package. There are directions and limitations to get the job done right ... in the next six weeks.

To Be Aware Of Wild Birds

Most livestock producers have faced the problem of wild birds during the fall and winter months. These birds come by the thousands and feed from livestock bunks and feeders. They not only eat feed but their droppings present very unsanitary conditions for everyone. Also, since the birds fly from farm to farm, they are a definite source of spreading various diseases. Unfortunately, we do not have a real good cure for the problem. They can be screened out of confinement buildings. One farmer obtained results by dropping a half inch rope in turpentine, then tacking it on top of the roosting area, giving discomfort by irritating the feet. Another farmer suggested using a shallow pan with about a half inch of salt on the bottom with a thin layer of lard over the salt so as the bird pecks through the lard they pick up the sale. In buildings without livestock, a rotating light makes the birds dizzy and they will not stay long. In any event ... good luck.

DOING WORSE THAN OUR FATHERS?

November 13, 1988

Background Scripture: Jeremiah 7.

Devotional Reading: Jeremiah 2:4-13.

When I was a very young man, I was quite critical of the world the youth of my day were inheriting from our fathers. In my eyes, it fell so far short of justice, liberty, brotherhood and Christian charity. As far as they went, my judgements and those of my peers were all too correct. Most of us vowed that we would deliver to our children a much better world.

I'm not sure just which generation is in charge of the world just now, but there are many times when I realize ruefully that my generation has handed or is handing over a world that is certainly different, but perhaps no better than the one that was passed on to us. In fact, when I consider the extremely high rate of youthful suicide, the evergrowing drug culture and the threat of global nuclear destruction, I can't help suspecting that our heritage to the next generation may be even a step or two backward.

SLICK & SHINY

Yet, how can that be? When I was a boy the churches could not measure up to most of the churches we have today. Our Sunday school curriculum was but a shadow of what is available today. Even small churches today are so much better equipped, teachers are better trained, and congregations so much more sophisticated. Participating in the life of a church today is generally so much more fun; lots of organized activities, programs, and opportunities.

Obviously, that is not what makes a difference in the long run. The people in Jeremiah's day could also point to a prosperous and popular Hebrew religion, but Jeremiah makes it clear that that is not what God is looking for. Business might be "as usual" or even "better than ever" at the temple, but that didn't mean that people took God seriously. They were proud of their elegant temple, to be sure, but they were proud for the wrong reasons.

So through Jeremiah, God comes to them, saying: "Do not trust in these deceptive words: 'This is the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord'" (Jeremiah 7:4). No one is saved from God's judgement by a glorious temple or a "well-fixed church."

THE SAME PEOPLE

What God really wants from them — and from us — is a life that tries to incorporate the moral precepts of the religion. The same people who cried so confidently, "The temple of the Lord!", were the same ones whom God addressed when he said through Jeremiah: "Will you steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, burn incense to Baal, and go after other gods that you have not known, and then come and stand before me in this house... and say, 'We are delivered!' — only to go on doing these abominations?" (7:9-10).

Actually, their religion had become a shield behind which they lived lives that were more attuned to the pagan religions around them than the high moral level demanded by the Lord. Their "church-going" kept up the appearances of the traditional Hebrew faith, but in their private and public lives they were living by hedonistic standards.

And what of us? Is it possible that we too are vulnerable to Jeremiah's searing prophecy? What "abominations" do we perpetuate as we continue to "come and stand before me in this house"? And when the records are totaled and balanced, it is possible God's prophets will say of us: "They did worse than their fathers"?

We Put More Men In The Field Than The United States Army.

Currently, Uncle Sam keeps around 300,000 army soldiers on active duty.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, helps keep over 2 million farmers on active duty. With more loans for more farming needs than any other lending institution.

For many of you, we've been there from the beginning. With money for land, as well as your house and barn.

We help stock the farm, too. With loans for everything from cows to catfish. Seeds to saplings. Fertilizer to fencing.

And when it's time for a new tractor or pick-up, just call us to get the wheels turning.

Farming has been our only field of interest for seventy years. That's because we're farmers too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

What's more, come rain or shine, we'll stick by you in any kind of weather. And when you think about it, that's reason enough to join our ranks.

Conservationists, Contractors Join To Fight Erosion

LEESPORT (Berks) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service (SCS) has joined with the Land Improvement Contractors of America (LICA) to train conservation contractors as a way to speed up the application of soil and water conservation practices. These practices are needed by farmers with highly erodible land so they can comply with the conservation provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill.

SCS Chief Wilson Scaling and LICA President Jim Jacobs signed an agreement that marks a new level of cooperation between a USDA agency and a private organization.

Chief Scaling said, "To stay eligible for USDA programs, farmers with highly erodible cropland need to have a conservation plan by 1990 and have the planned practices applied by the end of 1994. That means a tremendous number of conservation practices must be installed andmust meet SCS specifications." Scaling said that SCS can not meet this goal alone. "This agreement will enable conservation contractors to improve their skills and assist in checking out the completed work."

Under the agreement, SCS will train conservation contractors in layout and checking of conservation practices. The goal is to develop conservation contractors with the knowledge and skills to handle both the construction and the required documentation of the soil conservation practices.

LICA's local chapters like the Pennsylvania Land Improvement Contractors Association (PLICA) will encourage conservation contractors to become trained. The training is voluntary and will be available to both member and non-member contractors. PLICA Executive Director Vernal C. Miles notes that such an effort has been under way in Pennsylvania for some years. "A good percentage of our contractors already have obtained this training and have the authority," reports Miles. PLICA has 220 members in Pennsylvania. Another 25 firms that supply contracting materials are associate members.

Nationwide, LICA reports that 1,600 contractors are already qualified. SCS hopes to see the number double by 1990. SCS accepts documentation from contractors who have demonstrated their competency in installing and checking construction for adherence to specifications. SCS randomly field checks each contractor's practices annually to assure that practices meet specifications.

Contractors desiring information on LICA should contact V. C. Miles at 336 Sixteenth, New Cumberland or their county office of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-When youngsters in one family enter eight baby beef in a major show, that's news. When they capture the Grand and Reserve championships of the entire junior division of a major livestock exposition, that're really news.

But when they take seven steers into that show and place at the top, in order of standing within their entries in every class with every animal they enter, that's impossible.

At least it was until Paul, Wesley and Rhoda Mast, Morgantown, Berks County, did just that Wednesday at the Pennsylvania National Livestock Exposition.

Wesley, 15, exhibited one of his Angus steers to the Grand Championship over the Hereford of brother Paul, age 19, and a shorthorn, exhibited by Connie Quesenberry, Stewartstown 4-H member.

After the judge indicated his championship placing, his sister Mae, 13, led in the Angus reserve champion to compete for junior show reserve champinship. Paul's Hereford champion won this spot, while the championship class saw three members of the same family competing.

-Mrs. John Snavely, Manheim, was hostess for Society No. 2 Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Andrew Low was elected to the president's post, with Mrs. Carl Brubaker becoming secretary. Both officers will serve two year terms. Mrs. Nathan Oberholtzer was named to the Flower Gift Committee.

Farmers To Benefit From Tax Reform

ferent interests are walking around looking for tax reform to disguise a means to raise additional revenues. I will let it up to the next legislature rather than allow that to happen," Stauffer said.

Gohl said in some situations it may make sense to keep the property tax base."In the Pocono area where you have many summer or vacation homes and people come in to live for three or four days per week, an income tax would not add much to the revenues because these people have their official residence out of the state. Part-time property owners use the services that create a heavy cost to the community.

"But in other parts of the state where you have a large citizen population it makes sense to use the income tax. That way the persons with larger incomes will pay for the community services. And the equity that has been put into a property many years earlier will not be taxed as vigorously," Gohl said.

Both Gohl and Stauffer agree that even the income tax method should not be pushed too hard.

Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary, said the task force set up by Governor Robert Casey in August of 1987 made recommendations that said any tax reform should be fair, be voluntary to the local community, produce adequate and stable revenue and provide no windfalls to governments at taxpayers' expense.

Under the income tax proposal, the present state tax base would be used. Thus, social security, retirement benefits, and unemployment and workmen's compensation would not be taxed. Where a senior citizen qualifiies for the property tax rebate provision, no income tax would be collected.

The sales tax would be structured so that the county government could receive sales tax revenues to reduce property taxes and at the same time share revenues, according to formula, a portion with municipal governments in their counties.

Controls are built into the proposals so that local governments may not collect large amounts of additional taxes because of the change in the tax system. Before any local government can implement any provision of the new tax law, it must form a citizens' committee to look at the tax base, find what revenues are now generated and determine what makes sense for the future of their community. In addition, a ceiling is placed on each county so that the cap may not be exceeded.

"Agriculture will be very fortunate if we can get this tax reform bill," Wolff said. "The bill mainly provides for real property tax relief by reducing real estate taxes up to 30 percent on the entire farm if the farm is the primary residence of the farmer," Wolff said. "The provision will shift the burden of taxes from a real property base to a non-real property base. Tax revenues will come from income taxes and sales taxes."

Even reassessment of property values will be more palatable if less emphasis is placed on property taxers. "When 76 percent of revenues come from property taxes and you reduce this burden down to 50 percent, I think you will find that when people's properties are reassessed, their reaction will not be as violent as they are now," Gohl said.

In addition, farmers who don't improve their properties now because their tax base will increase, will have less reason to feel this way under the new tax reform proposals.

Present state legislators have only a few days to make the necessary compromises, get the bill out of committee and enact it into law. Since this session of the legislature may not by law, act after November 30, they don't have much time left.

To create interest and show public support for tax reform, Govrnor Casey has set November 15 as a legislative rally day in Harrisburg. All interested persons are invited to come to the State Capitol and talk to their senators and representatives. The Governor is scheduled to speak to the citizens at 2 p.m.

In addition to tax reform, Wolff would like farmers who attend the legislative rally to encourage their legislators to also pass the Farm Land Preservation Bill, the Penn Ag Farm Bill and the Animal Health Commission Bill. "We are concerned that if we lose the momentum generated in this session of the legislature, we will not be able to generate enthusiasm again," Wolff said. That's why the Casey adminstration has scheduled the rally--to call attention to the need to get these bills enacted by the end of November.

Van Dale Introduces Top Silo Unloaders

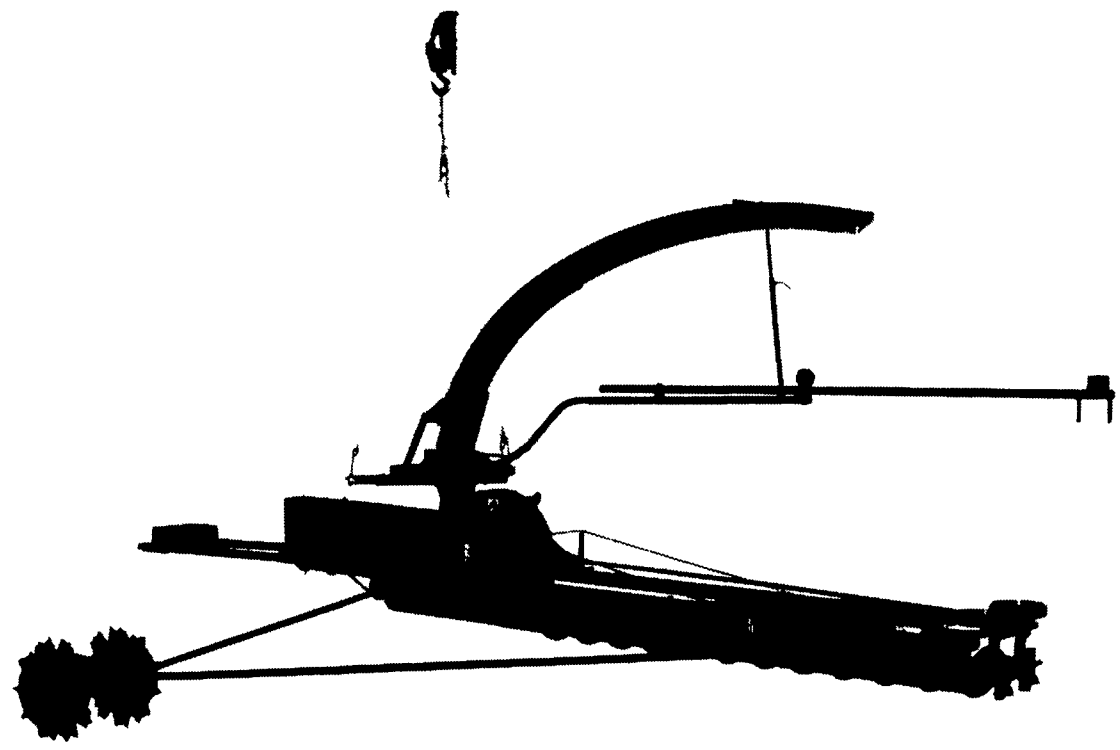
LONG LAKE, MN — Van Dale introduced a surface-drive and center-drive unloader that feature impellers made with a low-friction, wear-resistant material that reduces gum buildup. The impeller housing has a ¼-inch wrapper insert made with this material as well as inserts in the iron modified V-paddles.

The material doesn't rust or corrode, is impact resistant, and maintaines toughness in extreme temperature ranges.

The unloaders also feature a self-adjusting discharge assembly, which maintains a smoother radius for maximum velocity through all torque arm heights. The chute follower is spring loaded to maintain the proper position with the discharge chute. The unloaders have a three-degree discharge angle, which automatically sets the most efficient cone, or downward slope angle from the center of the site to the site wall, eliminating the guesswork of the past.

The unloaders also come with self-cleaning impeller V-belts, spring-loaded idler pulley assembly, and a combination vented fill plug and dipstick that prevents pressure buildup and allows easy lubrication checks.

For further information on the unloaders, contact Van Dale Inc., PO Box 337, Long Lake, MN 55356; 612/473-7395.



Van Dale's surface-drive silo unloader features self-adjusting discharge chute, self-cleaning impeller V-belt, and an impeller made of a low-friction material.

Townships To Receive Revised Sample Manure Ordinance

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Conservation District released a revised copy of the sample manure ordinance to all county townships this week.

This latest revision reflects improvements suggested by a committee from the Lancaster County Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Farmers Association Legislative Council, the Director of Legislation of the Pennsylvania Association of Township Supervisors and LCCD members.

The original version of this sample sent to county townships earlier this year was designed by a committee of the LCCD to provide townships with a tool to address manure management problems. This initial version met with some criticism from the Lancaster County Farmer's Association.

Hoover said during a telephone interview on Thursday that LCFA is satisfied with the wording of this version, but PFA members do not endorse the ordinance.

"PFA does not promote the ordinance. In every township we think most farmers are doing a good job of managing manure, but there may be 1 or 2 percent of the farmers with an excess problem and we feel they should be dealt with on a case by case basis," said Gordon Hoover, president of the Lancaster County Farmers Association.

Hoover added that if townships feel they need to consider the ordinance it will be suitable to address an excess manure problem, but pollution problems will be handled by DER on a case by case basis.

"This (ordinance) is not a solution. It is only part of the solution. The problem of nitrates in the ground water is a much bigger problem than manure," said Hoover. "We strongly urge all farmers to get involved on the township level when this comes up."

This version of the sample manure ordinance will be discussed at the Annual Lancaster County Township Supervisors meeting to be held on Monday, November 14.

Tillage Conference Set

YORK — Conservation-minded farmers are invited to attend the Mid-Atlantic Conservation Tillage Conference, which is being held December 14 at the York County Fairgrounds.

Sponsored by the Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia cooperative extension services, the conference features a keynote address from Dr. John F. Marten, the staff economist for Farm Journal. Marten will be speaking on farm production, prices, and politics in 1989.

Other topics to be discussed at the conference include how water quality issues affect the future; conservation tillage and groundwater quality; improving nutrient efficiency with no tillage; tillage alternatives; and Roundup tolerance on crops.

For tickets, contact James Welshans, Dauphin extension ag agent, 717/921-8803.

FFA Dropping "Farmers" From Its Name

KANSAS CITY, MO (AP) — The Future Farmers of America took "farmers" out of its name Thursday in a change designed to show there are other agricultural careers besides working down on the farm.

Delegates to the national convention voted to change the name to National FFA Organization, the culmination of a five-year movement to broaden the organization's appeal. About 23,000 delegates are attending the convention.

"The students who are already in have no conerns about the name," said Bill Stagg, director of information for the 416,000-member organization.

"But the new students: those people have an awfully tough time getting beyond our name. They are not interested in farming, and it was difficult for them to take on a jacket and associate themselves with the word farmer," he continued.

The change was made in hopes of counteracting a 23 percent loss of membership that has occurred since the mid 1970s.

"The problem we were experiencing was in the suburban and urban areas where those kids are not preparing to be farmers," said Stagg, adding that the FFA's largest chapter was in Philadelphia and its third largest was in Chicago.

Interests of FFA members include horticulture, forestry, agricultural mechanics, agricultural journalism, research, and marketing.

TAX PLANNING

Tax planning time is here again. With the drought and high feed prices of 1988, many farmers may feel that their tax liability may be lower this year, but we are still feeling the effects of the phase out of the investment tax credit; the capital gains provision repeal; the increasing social security tax rates; the income averaging repeal, and the slower depreciation methods. So it's almost impossible to get a feel for your tax liability just by thinking and comparing this year to prior years.

If your projected liability is higher than you desire and/or higher than previous years, you can use the methods suggested below to lower your tax liability. Just remember the goal of tax planning is to even out ones tax liability from year to year, not necessarily reduce liability to zero.

Six Ways To Lower Your Income Taxes

The following are six basic ways to lower your tax liability:

1.) prepay operating expenses.

2.) purchase machinery or equipment.

3.) paying your children, over eight years old, for farm work done.

4.) increase the deductible portion of your itemized deductions.

5.) make deductible payments to your IRA or Keogh plan, or

6) defer income until 1989.

Each of these ways have their own unique advantages and disadvantages. This column is devoted to a brief discussion of these six methods.

Prepaying Farm Expenses

Prepaying deductible farm expenses such as feed, fertilizer, seed corn, spray chemicals, supplies or any other regular operating expense is probably the best way to lower taxes. The advantages of prepayment include: dollar for dollar deductibility on schedule F, (which will lower federal, state, and income and social security taxes), ease of purchase, early order and quantity discounts, and avoiding the future price increases in commodities.

When prepaying or prepurchasing any service or commodity, be sure to obtain a receipt for a certain service or quantity of commodity at an established price. Simply prepaying $5,000.00 on the feed bill will not hold up under IRS audit. The main disadvantage of prepaid expenses is that the total deductible prepaid expenses are limited to 50 percent of that years total deductible farming expenses (including depreciation, but excluding prepayment of supplies). The remaining balance of the prepaid expenses may be deducted in the year the items purchased are used.

This rule, effective after March 1, 1986, will rarely affect any full time farmer. This new rule doesn't apply also if the farm house is your main residence and you exceed the 50 percent limitation because of a change in business operations directly attributable to extraordinary circumstances.

Purchasing Machinery

Purchasing equipment is probably the second most commonly used method of lowering ones tax liability. It's main advantage is that up to 10,000 dollars of purchases can be expensed the first year under the IRS section 179 election. Section 179 expense is also limited to farm profit, so the 179 expense can't reduce the schedule F to a loss. Depreciable items not written off immediately under section 179 are allowed a half years depreciation, unless over 40% of your capital purchases are made after September 30.

If over 40% of your capital purchases were made after September 30 then you can use only half a quarter depreciation, based on the quarter the asset was acquired, rather than the normal half a year. The main disadvantage is that large amounts of money may be spent to receive a relatively small tax advantage, and farmers have also spent large sums of money to save taxes and then later found themselves in financial distress.

Itemized Deductions and Paying your Children

Here are a few brief thoughts about the itemized deductions and the paying your children methods of reducing your tax liability. To increase itemized deductions you may want to make some or all of your normal 1989 charitable contributions in 1988. You could also pay your fourth quarter or yearly state estimate due January 15, 1989 before January 1, 1989.

Paying your children for actual work done is an excellent way to keep your money in the family and hopefully help your child pay for college or establish their own business. These payments must be reasonable in amount for work performed and should be paid on a regular basis, not just once a year. A record of hours worked must be kept similar to any other employee. Consult your accountant closely because new rules apply to the taxation of minors and this alternative is not as attractive as it was in the past.

IRA's and Keoghs and Deferring Income

Beginning in 1987 there are new rules associated with IRA's and Keogh's. So if, as a married couple your adjusted gross income is between and $50,000, and either spouse has a qualified retirement plan, your IRA allowed deduction will be phased out. If your adjusted gross income is above $50,000 you're IRA deduction is eliminated. Please see your accountant for all the details concerning IRA and Keogh deductibility.

The big advantage of the IRA deduction, especially if your cash flow is tight now, is that contributions can be made until and including the day your taxes are filed. Another advantage of the IRA is that taxation is delayed until the money is withdrawn and hopefully more money will be available to pay the taxes. Deferring livestock sales, or capital asset sales or any farm income

Nominations Open For 1991 Keystone Holstein Futurity

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — Nominations are now being accepted for the 1991 Keystone Holstein Futurity for 3-Year-Olds. It offers a guaranteed purse of $500 to the winner. The Keystone Holstein 3-Year-Old Futurity is a project of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association to stimulate interest in breeding and developing outstanding registered Holsteins, for production and type regardless of individual herd size. Three nominations are required for each animal that competes. A breeder may nominate any number of heifer calves they wish.

RULES AND CONDITIONS

Eligibility: Any registered Holstein female born in Pennsylvania between September 1, 1987 - August 31, 1988 is eligible for the 1991 Keystone Futurity.

Fees: 1st Payment of $3.00 with nomination paid by December 1, 1988; 2nd Payment of $11.00 paid by October 1, 1989; 3rd Payment of $20.00 paid by October 1, 1990.

Purse: All Futurity monies shall be divided with 50% or at least $500 being awarded to the first place animal. The remainder will be divided among the other participants with percentages varying according to the number of exhibitors.

Refunds: All nomination fees are committed to the purse. No refunds will be made whether an animal competes or eligibility is discontinued.

Maintaining Eligibility: Eligibility after an animal has been nominated is maintained by making subsequent payments on due dates as specified. Owner will be notified when payment is due. Failure to make the text payment cancels eligibility.

Sale of Eligible Animals: Any animal sold after being nominated initially will remain eligible, and the new owner will be responsible for maintaining subsequent payments.

Miscellaneous: The Pennsylvania Holstein Association is sponsoring and governing the Futurity and will not be responsible for any accident or injury in connection with the show.

Drought Reduces Crop Residue

LEESPORT (Berks) — Reduced crop yields from the summer drought are also resulting in reduced crop residues for over winter in most areas of the state, reports Joel Myers, Agronomist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service. According to Myers, effectiveness of conservation tillage systems is directly related to percentage of residue surface cover and decreased soil moisture retention.

Where spring crops will be no-tilled on a low residue cover field, a late planted rye cover crop can effectively produce residue in the spring. Rye that does not germinate this fall will hold over the winter and produce adequate cover through spring germination.

Aroostok rye, a variety recognized for its early spring increased vigor and growth, would be a wise choice, if available. Myers cautioned that late fall plantings should be no-tilled to minimize soil disturbance. "This is especially critical," said Myers, "because of the low amount of cover available for winter soil protection. No-tilling on the contour would be advisable even if the prior crop was planted up and down slope.

An alternative for farmers who have cattle manure would be to surface apply at least six tons per acre of strawy manure. Manure should not be spread close to streams, springs and other areas of water flow. Poultry and hog manure have little value for soil protection due to the lack of bedding materials.

Farmers participating in U.S. Department of Agriculture Farm Bill programs and others interested in practicing effective conservation tillage next spring should consider a late fall no-till seeding of rye to increase crop residue. For additional information, contact the county office of the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Massachusetts Voters

Suffering and Exploitation (CEASE), a Cambridge-based group. The group collected the 72,000 signatures needed to present their petition to the state legislature this past spring. When it was rejected, they collected another 15,000 signatures, enough to put it on the ballot.

Simply stated, the petition called for setting up an animal welfare board composed of four animal rightists and the state director of animal health to establish regulations to protect animals in Massachusetts. Specific attention would be paid to the raising of veal calves and housing of layers as well as surgical procedures such as castration and dehorning.

Ecstatic was the word Jay Slattery used to describe the mood of Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation members at the outcome of Tuesday's election. Slattery is the executive director of the organization as well as treasurer of the Massachusetts Committee to Save the Family Farm.

CEASE hasn't admitted defeat yet, according to Slattery. "They were on the phone with us yesterday to congratulate us and to inform us they were going to file legislation on December 1 to be heard by the legislature," he said.

The animal rightists can't go through the referendum process again and will have to go through normal legislative processes with a bill that would allow the legislature to make adjustments to it.

"They will have to greatly modify their proposal if they expect support from the legislature," stated Slattery. "The legislature was very upset with the CEASE people because they thought they (animal rightists) were lying. They won't get a very warm reception (in the legislature)."

The placement of the question on the ballot raised a furor among Massachusetts farmers who in response conducted a grassroots campaign against it.

Massachusetts Governor Michael S. Dukakis also encouraged people to vote against the question. "In my view, it could seriously threaten the livelihood of thousands of hard-working, caring Massachusetts farmers. The basic fact is: an animal that's abused or neglected is simply not going to be productive. Every farmer knows that. They owe it to animals—and to themselves—to care for their animals humanely," he said in a statement.

For now, Massachusetts farmers, as well as farmers all over the nation, are breathing a sigh of relief.

Health Hazards Meeting

NEWARK, DE — Farms are often thought of as idyllic places, full of fresh air, sunshine and other health-enhancing traits. Actually, farms are full of potential health hazards.

The University of Delaware and Maryland Cooperative Extension systems and the American Lung Associations of Delaware and Maryland have designed an Agricultural Health Hazards program to help families and professionals understand and prevent potential health problems around the farm. The meeting will be held Nov. 16, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the Delmar Fire Hall in Delmar. Del

Registration at the door begins at 8:30 a.m. The $3 fee covers coffee and donuts and lunch. All registrants will receive a particle respirator, an educational packet and a chance at door prizes including a positive pressure respirator and tyvek clothing.

The program will cover information on respiratory hazards on the farm, insurance needs, protective clothing and equipment, and how to respond to farm emergencies.

To preregister, or for further information, contact your county agricultural Extension agent.

want to save, we will have the money to purchase it," Herr said. "We can then place deed restrictions for preservation, remove portions that are right for development, resell the land and put the money back into the revolving fund for the next farm. We are not opposed to development. We just want it in the right places—not on good farm land."

Alan Musselman, Executive Director, said Lancaster County is growing at the rate of 110 people per week. "We are now a metropolitian area," Musselman said. "We feel like a metropolitian area. We need to decide where we are going."

Lancaster County now has 84,000 acres in ag areas and 60 farms that include 5,000 acres with preservation easements. In addition, the group plans to expand not only farmland preservation efforts, but also develop skills to expand farm markets and build sustainable farms that can be preserved for the future.

Robert Rodale, new board member and spokesman for sustainable agriculture, said he represents people outside Lancaster County who don't live here but think this place is sacred. "If Lancaster County doesn't regenerate," Rodale said, "it will be a real loss for the spirit of America."

Gene Garber, baseball player and West Donegal farmer, speaks to the Lancaster Farmland Trust annual meeting.

Gene Garber, former major league baseball player and now a West Donegal Township farmer said the ideal situation would be for everyone who grew up on a farm as a child to do their own farm land preservation.

Garber listed local growth, lack of planning and over extended farmers as major reasons why the farmland preservastion dilemma exists.

"Until we appreciate the past we will never appreciate the future," Garber said. "My father always said, 'Be careful how you spend your money so you don't get yourself into a situation where you can't affort to farm and you can't afford to quit.'"

In other business The Trust honored a number of persons and organizations in the community that contributed significantly to ag land preservation. They include:

•Lancaster Newspapers for reporting on growth and development issues over the year and a series of articles by Ed Klimuska now in book form entitled "Lancaster County: The (Ex?) Garden Spot of America".

•Lancaster Heritage and Environment Alliance.

•Mary Schant, who placed conservation easments on woodland and now is working to preserve her Ephrata Township farm with historic buildings.

•West Donegal Friends of Ag, for farm protection efforts.

"These people stood up for their ag community in difficult circumstances," Mussleman said. "The commitment on their part was outstanding. I know their community appreciates it and I know many of your neighbors do too."

State College Little Lions

Eight members of the State College Little Lions FFA Chapter from State College attended the third annual Freshman Leadership Conference. The event was hosted by Collegiate FFA at Penn State University's Ag Arena on September 23. Three hundred forty-three members and advisors from 34 schools across the state composed the largest participation level ever. The members learned about the areas of public relations, parliamentary procedure, leadership, and awards pertaining to FFA (Future Farmers of America). A highlight of the conference was hearing Kevin Ohsner, the National Vice President from Colorado, speak about the advantages of his FFA experience.

compared to previous years, he does not encourage increased spending or borrowing.

Marten noted that debt in this country is extremely high in relation to other things. The last time debt was this high was in 1930. But farmers are not at fault.

Although the drought of 1988 cut crop production across the country and some people may be feeling the cost-price squeeze more than others there are brighter days ahead, but farmers need to be cautious.

"Farmers have a way of becoming emotionally attached to crops from bad years. They want to hang onto them for dear life," said Marten. " And that's a way to get burned twice. You get burned with a short crop and then you get burned again when you hold onto your beans or whatever to next summer. You didn't sell for $8 in the fall and then you sell for $6 next summer. Or you hang onto your corn all year and finally get rid of it at $2.06. You get burned twice."

The bad news was that the corn crop of 1988 was the second worst crop in 115 years, according to Marten, but the good news was that there is corn available to eastern farmers. A big carryover from last year eased the crop loss of 1988. But as the corn moves eastward prices increase to reflect the cost of hauling.

"In Illinois corn is at $2.65/bushel. By the time you pay to haul it here it will hit $3.25," said Marten.

The soybean supply is 17 percent short. Economists are asked at what price must the soybeans be to decrease demand by 17 percent?

"Raising the price by 30 percent will decrease the demand and many of you are already seeing those prices," said Marten.

"If you are holding your beans and waiting for beans to go $9 or above, I want you to examine that bet," asked Marten. "In the last 15 years soybeans have only reached $9 just three percent of the time, so soybeans have been below $9, 97 percent of the time. How sure of a bet is that?"

However, according to Marten, this was an odd year and not the beginning of a trend of dry weather. He does not look for a repeat in 1989. With that in mind, he said many farmers who might be inclined to sign-up for the ASCS corn program should think again.

Marten also discussed a new ASCS program which would allow farmers to put some soybeans in corn acres, but it is a non-binding agreement.

"If come spring and we get rain, everything looks good, you can change your mind and go ahead and plant corn in those acres you planned to put soybeans in," said Marten.

Meat consumption is steadily increasing in the U.S. The bad news is that beef consumption is not. Broiler consumption is up and pork is holding steady. On the whole meat consumption is setting new records each year.

But he cautioned pork producers who may have reaped a profit in the past two years, "If you just made a pile of money in hogs in the last two years don't start to expand. It's funny, but it seems that when farmers make a ton of money they have the ungodly urge to give it all back. Don't do it. Take that money and pay your bills and don't think the prices you saw in August are going to continue. Plan next year's budget on a $40 hog, not a $63 dollar hog."

He cautioned others with livestock to hold onto their animals if at all possible through the winter. Those farmers who do will find it's going to pay off. "Selling your livestock, is like selling the engine out of your tractor. This is where you make your money, don't get rid of your income."

However, there are those farmers who are going to get caught in the price squeeze this year. Farmers who are paying off loans at a rate a couple points higher than the present rates and may have to buy corn this year, and are already paying high prices for soybean meal will feel the squeeze, especially if their corn production was way down this year.

Marten looked at the stockmarket crash of 1987 and said he wanted to know why people thought it was such a big deal. He explained that while the Dow Jones fell sharply it had not fallen below the normal trend.

"Today the Dow Jones is twice as high as it was five years ago. If the Dow Jones dropped 800 points

Land Prices Major Block For MD Farmers To Compete

How well do Maryland farmers compete with their counterparts throughout the United States? Quite well, according to a study conducted by Dr. Bruce L. Gardner, professor of agricultural and resource economics at the University of Maryland.

The study shows that, despite the inroads made by urban growth, Maryland farmers today account for a larger share of total U.S. farm income than their fathers did in 1950.

Dr. Gardner presented results of his study at a morning workshop as the first-ever Governor's Conference on the Future of Maryland Agriculture got underway Thursday (Nov. 10) for a two-day run at the Omni Hotel in Baltimore.

Gardner noted that the downward trend in farm numbers has been less severe in Maryland than in the nation as a whole, and the state now claims a larger fraction of U.S. farms than at any time since World War II.

Surprisingly, farm labor wages in Maryland have not risen faster during the past 35 years than in other parts of the country.

But booming land prices are the major economic factor making it difficult for Maryland farmers to compete with their counterparts in other regions of the United States.

In 1950, Maryland farmland sold for a little more than twice the U.S. average price per acre. But Maryland farmland is now valued at more than three times the national average. The sharp decline in farmland prices elsewhere -- including the Midwest -- during the early 1980s was hardly noticed on the Maryland farm real estate scene.

High land prices mean high costs for producing many kinds of agricultural products. But certain kinds of goods and services can still be produced if there is a strong local demand, even though they are costly to transport.

Included in this category are golf courses, recreational horse and hunting operations, landscaping, and nursery and greenhouse products.

High land prices and a virtual halt in the upward trend of crop yields seem to have placed Maryland grain farmers at a comparative disadvantage with their Midwest counterparts. But the continuing importance of livestock -- especially dairy cattle -- and the broiler industry have kept Maryland corn prices at approximately an eight-cent premium over U.S. average prices for the past 35 years.

Intensive crop production, with its attendant heavy use of fertilizers and pesticides, does exact a cost in environmental issues such as reduced water quality in groundwater, rivers and the Chesapeake Bay.

But farmers in Iowa-- and probably other Midwest states-- are facing even more severe problems, as far as groundwater is concerned. So, on a relative scale, the environmental arena appears to give Maryland farmers a slight comparative advantage.

Agway Elects New Officers

SYRACUSE, NY — Ralph H. Heffner of Pine Grove, PA, and Richard C. Call of Batavia, NY, have been re-elected chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the Agway board of directors. They were named at a board meeting immediately following the close of the Agway 24th Annual Meeting, October 28, in Syracuse.

William A. Hiller of Fayetteville, NY, was re-elected president and general manager of the 102,000-member farm cooperative, headquartered in DeWitt, NY.

Heffner, who operates a dairy and fruit farm, was first elected to the Agway board in 1973 and became chairman in 1987. He is a graduate of The Pennsylvania State University and earned a master's degree in agricultural economics from the University of Delaware.

Call was elected to the Agway board in 1973 and vice chairman in 1987. He is a graduate of Cornell University and operates a large farm in partnership with his brother, raising processing vegetables and small grains.

As you are well aware of by now, the Food Security Act of 1985 legislated the most sweeping chages for federal farm conservation programs in histroy. New programs were initiated: The Conservation Reserve Program, Sodbuster, Swampbuster, and Conservation Compliance. The intent was not only to promote environmentally sound farming practices, but to integrate federal agricultural programs. In other words, the intent was to have programs that sent farmers the same message, not contradictory ones as in the past. Almost three years have passed since the 1985 FSA was signed into law. Let's take stock of where things are.

Conservation Reserve Program

The Conservation Reserve Program is designed to retire highly erodible land currently in agricultural use. In return for placing eligible land in the Reserve, the farmer receives an annual rental payment from the government for 10 years. The rental payment is determined by the number of erodible acres enrolled, multiplied by the per acre bid price that the farmer indicated he or she was willing to accept in return for taking the land out of production and putting it in approved soil-conserving use. Pennsylvania has more than 100,000 acres of cropland eligible for the CRP. At the end of September 1988, 1,579 Pennsylvania farmers had enrolled more than 58,600 acres in the CRP, while an additional 37 farmers have had an additional 15,500 acres tentatively accepted. Thus, Pennsylvania farmers have enrolled 70 percent of the eligible acreage. More sign-up periods will be held, so it is possible that most of Pennsylvania's eligible acreage eventually will be enrolled.

Sodbuster and Swampbuster

There isn't much to report on Sodbuster and Swampbuster. Farmers found in violation are not eligible for the benefits of a host of USDA programs, including commodity support programs, crop insurance indemnities, disaster payments, FmHA loans and loan guarantees, and even CRP annual payments. For the most part, violations have been inadvertent ones that have since been redressed. Farmers will have to comply with Sodbuster and Swampbuster in 1988 if they expect to take advantage of the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988. In other words, farmers who are found to be in violation of either Sodbuster or Swampbuster in 1988 will not be able to collect any benefits under the 1988 DDA. Furthermore, farmers who suffered lasses sufficient to require the purchase of crop insurance in 1989 as stipulated in the 1988 DDA will have to make sure they do not violate these two provisions in 1989.

Conservation Compliance

While Sodbuster and Swampbuster were designed to protect land not yet in production, Conservation Compliance was designed to protect highly erodible land currently in production. Farmers with such highly erodible land have until January 1, 1990, to get an approved conservation plan developed or they will lose eligibility to the same USDA programs mentioned previously. In addition, a farmer must be applying the conservation system specified in the conservation plan by January 1, 1995, or lose eligibility for the programs as well. Soil Conservation Service personnnel in Harrisburg project that more than 1.5 million acres in Pennsylvania would meet the definition of highly erodible land. By the end of September 1988, SCS had evaluated more than 1.6 million acres, with only 7 percent found not to be highly erodible. Completed conservation plans cover over 917,600 of these acres, or 58.6 percent. This means that in the one year remaining before the January 1990 deadline, conservation plans must be developed for more than 40 percent of the acreage. SCS will develop a plan only if requested to do so by a farmer. SCS will not be held responsible if plans are not developed; the farmer will be. If you are a farmer with highly erodible land currently being used for annyal crop production, do not wait any longer. You need to act now!

The future

Farmers aare correct in thinking that the federal government has gotten tough over this issue of soil-loss control. Unfortunately, things will become tougher before they become easier. There will be a new farm bill in 1990. Public debate on the form and substance of the bill will most likely begin in 1989. There is already talk of a Conservation Compliance type of program with repect to agricultural chemicals, especially nutrients. In other words, there are rumblings that farmers will be asked to use pesticides and nutrients (both manure and commercial fertilizer) in an environmentally sound manner or lose eligibility for USDA programs. In all likelihood, such a provision would probably mean that farmers must be certified for pesticide handling, application, and disposal, and must have an approved nutrient-management plan.

At this time, it is anybody's guess whether such a provision will ever become part of a future farm bill. But there is probably more support for such a provision among non-farm interest groups at this time than there was at the same time prior to the passage of the 1985 FSA. And it was largely because of the non-farm interest groups that Sodbuster, swampbuster, and Conservation Compliance exist today.

So, there we have it. Farmers who did not believe that USDA would get serious over the new conservation initiatives in the Food Security Acrt of 1985 yhave found out otherwise. And there is a good chance that other conservation initiatives will be mandated in future farm legislation. This may seem restrictive to many farmers who may not wish to comply. But consider the alternative: The loss of eligibility for USDA programs can be disastrous in years when market prices fall, or crops fail. Even if such programs are not used year-in and year-out, they can spell the difference between keeping or losing the farm when hard times, like the 1988 drougt, roll around.

bers of the board of directors and will serve three -year terms. Tom Kearns and Susan Weaver, who have been serving the board on unfulfilled terms were officially elected to continue their work.

Only two producers were honored for butterfat production over 800 pounds in the Chester County DHIA. Ardrossan Farms, owned by Mrs. Edgar Scott and represented by herd manager Heinz Mielke, was honored for a final 1988 rolling herd average of 824 pounds of butterfat. H. & R. Mason of Oxford was honored for a final RHA of 815 pounds of butterfat.

Freeman Evans, secretary, asked members to contact their state board of directors about Pennsylvania DHIA management practices. Evans questioned the spending and hiring practices at the state level citing that PA DHIA has added six new management positions in the past eight years and at substantial salaries, according to Freeman. And these positions have been added without increased or improved services at the state level.

"I encourage you to talk to your state directors about whatever your concerns might be. My concerns are that PA DHIA has increased the size of the management staff and of their rules and regulations which has put more demands on local directors and if you are happy or are not happy with what they are doing, let them know."

Nelson Stoltzfus, state director, assured members that he was eager to hear their concerns and urged farmers to call him.

Dave Schwartz, Chester County extension agent announced that one-fourth of the dairy operations in the Chester County DHIA had kept their SCC level below 250,000 with an average herd size was 60 head.

At the conclusion of business, members were treated to a relaxing, beautiful slide show created by Bill King. King, now a professional photographer, is a retired county extension agent after serving Armstrong county for 30 years. His travels are in eastern United States and particularly the Appalachian mountain area.

Heinz Mielke, (left) herd manager for Ardrossan Farms accepts the award for reaching a rolling herd average of 824 pounds butterfat. Ardrossan Farms milks all registered Ayrshire at their farm in Villanova. Production on 125 cows is 19,875 pounds of milk, 824 butterfat and 660 protein. Carl Yoder, president made the presentation.

Changes In Ag Ed Programs — Where To Begin

BY PAT PURCELL

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — Another species has joined the endangered list and may soon become extinct if school administrators, teachers, legislators, farmers and agri-business people do not take action to prevent the disappearance of the vocational-agricultural student, but many are asking what type of action should be taken and who should do it.

Declining enrollments of vo-ag students in secondary schools in the United States jeopardizes the survival of agriculture in this country and threatens to dull the competitive edge for American agribusinesses in the global market, according to the recent national study on vo-ag education in secondary schools.

Student enrollment in high school vo-ag programs has fallen to 5 percent of the total student body in many areas not only urban, but rural communities as well where farming is the number one industry. In some schools the validity of the vo-ag program is being questioned. In some schools the vo-ag education program has already been terminated.

Those who are concerned the survival of the vo-ag student, the future of agriculture and agricultural education met in Harrisburg last week to discuss the news of the study's findings. However, for agricultural teachers this was old news. Many have already initiated changes within their curriculum or are well on their way towards this goal, but those updated programs are in the minority.

"We made changes at Garden Spot beginning in 1972 when we began our environmental ag program. We are in a rural area and most of our students come from non-farming backgrounds. Those from farm backgrounds go to the parochial schools. The population at Garden Spot is rural and non-farm and our changes were in response to that," explained Phil Ogline, Chairman of the Ag Science cluster at Garden Spot High School in New Holland.

Across the county and across the state other agricultural departments have recognized the need to change in response to the changing farm population and the changing face and demands of agriculture. But changes take time, money and planning.

At the Harrisburg meeting it was suggested the vocational in vo-ag be taken out because it carries too many negative connotations. These negative connotations arise from the focus of vo-ag and its related association, the Future Farmers of America (FFA), on production agricultural and many agreed this is too narrow to prepare students for today's and tomorrow's agri-industry.

"We've done all our work in ag mechanics and ag production. We need to develop our program to educate students in the areas of food processing, horticulture, and in ag resources and conservation," stated Ogline.

But although vo-ag carries some negative associations, there are some positive aspects of the program. "We may call it ag education, but it must be more broad. Calling it vo-ag may defeat our purposes. I think we need to keep the supervised occupational experiences (SOE) which are a big part of vocational education. What we need to do is strip away some of the stipulations," explained Ogline.

It was hoped that from the meeting in Harrisburg last week a plan of action would be developed. However, much of the discussion was devoted to deciding who or what group, department or bureau should take the reins of this project. A plan of action has already been in gear for sometime in several schools and the initiative has come from ag teachers.

"I believe the impetus must come from ag teachers and we must get the advisory councils active and supportive. These advisory councils will include school administrators and school board members and we need to make them aware of the need for change," explained Ogline.

Christine Williams, agricultural instructor at Tulpehocken in Berks County, says the ag instructors there are making their first steps towards change.

"We have conducted a survey within a 25 mile radius of our school to learn all possible ag employment areas and we have developed a list including everything from horses to wildlife to environment to vineyards," said Williams.

This list of possible areas of enrollment will lead to updated curriculum to meet the needs of ag industry. However, these changes may not find their way into the ag program until the 1989 school year.

Sounds easy, but that is a small factor in the overall equation in the enrollment problem. The requirements of the vocational-education under Chapter 6, according to Williams and others, make it nearly impossible for students to blend academic classes with ag education classes.

"Someone at the (Harrisburg) meeting said Chapter 6 wasn't a problem. Well, it is. And under those stipulations cross scheduling does not work in a small school. It does not work. We need to get rid of some of the vocational requirements," said Williams.

The mandatory double period is one of the biggest stumbling blocks, according to Williams. It is a big chunk of time out of any student's day. Williams suggests a split period. So students in other disciplines can take ag education as an elective.

Williams concedes ag teachers and administrators do not have an easy task ahead of them. "While we need to get rid of some of the vocational requirements we must be preparing kids to find jobs. They need practical skills to do that. We need to give them as much training as they can get. Not all students go to college and to think otherwise is not being realistic," expalined Williams

But while agricultural teachers may be taking the initiative, they unfortunately can not do it all themselves. They need help, direction and funding. "We need direction from the department of education, from Penn State agriculture and extension departments so that future teachers are trained properly and that the present teachers are kept up to date with technology."

Changes, expansion and updated teaching materials take money and the purse strings of school districts are held by school boards and school administrators, not by ag teachers. Enrollments may not dictate funding, but they do influence budgets.

Ag teachers have ahead of them the task of educating the non-agriculturalists on the diversity and magnitude of the farming industry and its impact on Pennsylvania's economy and the economic stability of the entire nation. Ag teachers need the help of members of the agricultural business, industry and production community as well as the help of parents. However, as this re-education of the American public is occurring the resource of trained and knowledgeable people in agricultural dwindles.

Indiana Farmers Hold Board Meeting

BY RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

Discussions on how to increase membership and how to decrease deer crop damage highlighted the November meeting of the Indiana County Farmers Association.

Held at the home of board member Daniel George near Brush Valley on Nov. 1, the meeting focused on appointing a chairman to oversee the association's annual membership drive, and on how to control the size of the area deer herd, which some board members said is causing as much crop damage as the summer's drought.

Association president Stan Fabin of Indiana RD 1, said the Pennsylvania Farmers Association's goal for the county group is to increase its membership from 433 to 437.

"We've met our memership goal each of the last three years," Fabin said, "but it's getting harder each year." The board members discussed their conversations with potential chairmen, but reported they had been unable to convince any members to accept the leadership roles of chairman for the membership committee or the womens committee.

"The committees are pretty much ready to go, we just need a chairman," said Peter Schaeffer, the association's PFA Regional Organization Director.

Fabin asked the board members to continue talking with county members who might be persuaded to assume a chairmanship position.

In resonse to reports of severe deer damage in some sections of the state, the board members were asked to complete a "Follow Up to Game Damage Survey" which will be returned to PFA for possible policy action.

The survey asked county board members to rate their deer crop damage on a scale ranging from non-existent to extensive, and to list crops most damaged, types of repellents which were most effective, and the extent of cooperation provided by the Game Commission's District Game Protectors.

Because of the extremely dry weather conditions over the summer, deer damage seems to be more severe than usual, several board members reported.

George said some of his fields of sweet corn yielded only about one-quarter of a normal crop because of the deer.

The Game Commission believes crop damages can be reduced by making more land available to hunters who will then harvest a larger number of deer; Fabin said. The August-September edition of the Indiana County Farmers Association newsletter reported A.K. Mack, the Game Commission's Farm Game Manager, is working with hundreds of landowners who have more than 50 acres, to encourage them to keep their land open for public hunting. In exchange for granting hunting privileges, landowners receive safety zone signs and an allotment of Christmas tree seedlings and other cover shrubs.

Fabin said Game Commission officials sometimes ask farmers why they post their land if they have deer problems. But he said the damage done by inconsiderate hunters who drive vehicles through fields and tear down fences is sometimes as bad as the damage done by the whitetails.

According to the Indiana County Treasurer's office, all allocated doe hunting licenses for the county for this hunting season have been sold through the Game Commission's new bonus doe license program. The county's allocation for this year is 11,400 licenses, up from 8,500 in 1987.

George, the association's Governmental Relations chairman, reported on a legislator training session scheduled for Dec. 5 in Clearfield. The session, he said, should be especially helpful for new board members who will need to approach area lawmakers on legislative matters.

Indiana County farms have been visited by local legislators on several occasions in recent months.

U.S. Rep. Joe Kolter, D-Beaver County, met with about 40 area farmers and state and local elected officials on July 16 at the Brookside Dairy near Indiana to discuss federal drought relief measures.

On Aug. 2, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff toured the Richard Simpson farm near Georgeville to inspect drought-stunted corn fields along with Clayton Winebark, the department's Southwest Regional Director and about 100 local farmers.

And two days later state Rep. Paul Wass, R-Indiana, visited Mr. George's Brush Valley farm to survey deer damage.

Fabin asked the board members for direction on how he should respond to requests for the association's membership list from three associate members. The associate members are businessmen who want to use the names as a mailing list for advertising flyers.

Current policy stipulates the membership list may only be distributed to regular members, and not associate members, Fabin said.

But it was decided the advertisements may offer legitimate and useful savings to the members. So the board decided to ask the membership, through their newsletter, if they would like to be included on advertising mailing lists from associate members.

In other action, board member Dave Bork of Homer City RD 4 was appointed as the group's new Ag Marketing chairman. Charles Deabenderfer of Indiana RD 3 was reappointed as Member Services chairman, and Robert Cameron of Homer City RD 1 was reappointed as Members Relations chairman.

Fabin reminded the members that by their December meeting the board needs to have a list of the top 10 priority issues they would like the PFA to work on. Possible issues, he suggested, might be water quality, taxes, animal welfare and solid waste disposal. He asked the members to review the PFA 1988 Policy book for ideas.

Lancaster Team Wins National Diary Bowl Title

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — Learning has been the top priority of the Lancaster County Dairy Bowl team. Winning has been number two. But apparently their priorities are in the right order because Bob Barley, Tom Wiker, Matthew Wanner, and Eugene Hess were able to return the championship title of the National Invitational 4-H Dairy Bowl to Pennsylvania during the competition held last week in Louisville, Kentucky.

The Lancaster County team defeated state championship teams from 21 states. They defeated the big dairy state of Wisconsin early in the double-elimination contest by 250 points. The Pennsylvania team edged by New York and Ohio in the finals. The contest was hosted by the North American International Livestock Exposition.

"Our success is measured more by what we've learned and how much we have improved," explained Dale Olver, coach of the national champions. "We were quite relaxed because we went down mainly for the participation. When we started winning it occurred to us, 'hey, we've got a pretty good chance to win this."

With two members in college the team had little time together for practicing, but these self-motivated youths studied on their own to make it to the top.

Defeating strong contenders from home in the 4-H state Dairy Bowl contest and earning the number two spot at the National Holstein competition gave these Lancaster countians the confidence to remain calm and the knowledge to earn the respect of their rivals.

The state Holstein champs and second place national team included Wiker, Wanner, Hess and Tom McCauley. McCauley was not eligible for the NAILE contest because he had competed there previously. In July Barley, Wanner and Hess were victorius in their quest for the 4-H state title. This put them in line for the national competition.

"It is ironic that the question which kept us from becoming champions at the national Holstein convention came up again in the next to the final match in Louisville," said Olver. This time they got the answer right.

The question was 'Abe Lincoln's mother died from drinking milk from a cow which ate this poisonous plant'. The answer: white snake root.

The team was unhappy losing on a question which had little practical value they felt, but were happy to know the answer when it was asked the second time.

"We were definitely crowd favorites. I think we really had the respect of other teams so much that even when a team lost they felt better knowing that they lost to a better team. I think all of this is really a sign of their upbringing," Olver said.

The national championship team members are: Bob Barley, son of John and Jane Barley, Conestoga, majoring in dairy production at Penn State University; Tom Wiker, son of Lester and Leah Wiker, Holtwood, majoring in dairy science at at Delaware Valley; Matthew Wanner, junior at Pequea Valley, son of Alfred and Carolynne Wanner of Narvon; Eugene Hess, works on the home farm, son of Homer and Dorothy Hess of Marietta.

Olver expressed his thanks to parents and to sponsors for making this valuable learning experience possible. Sponsoring the national Holstein contest were: Pfizer, Inc.; PA Holstein Association; Atlantic Breeders Coop; Atlantic Dairy Coop; Em-Tran, Inc., Gap Veterinary Associates; C. B. Hoover, Inc.; Meridian Bank; M W Agri-Services, Inc.; Penn-Jersey Products; Stonehurst Farms; Weaver Feeds; and J. B. Zimmerman. Sponsoring the national 4-H contest: PA Friends of 4-H; Agri-Analysis, Inc.; Lancaster County Agway; Fisher & Thompson, Inc.; Darrell Hoover and McCracken's Feed Mill.

Arrowsmith Exhibits National Jersey Champion

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — Like the national dairy bowl team champions, Hillacres Top Brass Jester did not get much practice in this year. But luckily experience did not count at the National Jersey Junior Show hosted by the North American Internatioal Livestock Exposition. This senior 2-year-old took the reserve grand honors at the national show. Jester is owned by Helen Arrowsmith of Peach Bottom and defeated more than 350 of the finest Jerseys in the country last week in Louisville, Kentucky.

Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arrowsmith, a student at West Chester University majoring in nursing, was not able to attend the show, but having shown there four times previously was well-acquainted with the grandeur of this national competition.

It just happened that in planning and transporting animals to shows this year, Jester, did not make it to many, according Bill Arrowsmith, Helen's father.

"We were gambling on Jester," said Bill Arrowsmith, "we've been at this for 30 years. This is the first time we have ever won at Louisville. But when we put her on Ray Witmer's truck I said she stood as good a chance as any and if she didn't take a first place then we might as well never go again."

"This is just the kind of thing that makes you keep going when you walk out in the morning and find a dead calf. You have your good breaks and you keep on going," said Bill Arrowsmith.

Farmers City People Discuss Concerns During Farm City Week

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

ST. THOMAS (Franklin) — "When we're talking about growth and development, we have to realize that, unfortunately, the prime agricultural ground is also 'the prime development ground. Houses like to grow there as well as a good corn crop does," stated Eugene Wingert.

The owner of a 500-acre farrow-to-finish operation with his wife, Betty, and son, Jere, Wingert discussed farm and city relations with county officials, who toured his farm as a part of the county's Farm-City Week activities.

"It's easier to perk prime ground," Wingert added. "Mountainous counties don't have the growth pressure we do. Just look at the southeastern corner of the state."

County commissioners Samuel Worley, Joe Ausherman, and Dennis Zeger participated on the tour, which was sponsored by the Franklin County Society of Farm Women. Also included on the tour were John Shearer, county extension agent, and Dalton Paul, state and local Farm-City Week chairman.

Paul explained that the purpose of Farm-City Week was to provide an opportunity to reflect on the lifestyles of each group and to promote a better partnership between farm and city people. "We need to appreciate what each (group) contributes to society," he said. "Many occupations are generated after a product leaves the farm. We're all in this together."

Worley, chairman of the commissioners, said that farms are small businesses. "What a farmer has invested can equal a business in town." The average farmer, according to Paul, produces enough food to feed 96 people.

The commissioners and their hosts also discussed farmland preservation. Wingert's farm is in the St. Thomas ag district, which comprises 13,000 acres, making it one of the largest in the state.

Development, both industrial and housing, is a concern of Franklin County farmer. Shearer explained the clash of interest between industry and farming: "With industrial growth, one industry replaces another—farming. We have to carefully guard our agricultural industry. Farms and ag-related industries pour $475 million per year into our country's economy."

Felton Ag Student Wins Lynthwaite Scholarship

William E. Culp of Felton, a University of Delaware senior, has been awarded the $1,000 Lynthwaite Farm Scholarship for 1988.

Culp, an animal science major in the College of Agricultural Sciences, plans to pursue a career as a veterinarian. He was presented the scholarship on the basis of his overall grade average and faculty recommendations.

A resident of Delaware for 30 years, Culp has worked in an animal hospital and has assisted with research in poultry pathology while in college. He particularly enjoys working with large animals and currently has a job at a horse farm.

Culp is a cadet/first lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Recipes For Lactose Intolerance

COLUMBUS, OH — For the almost 30 million Americans who experience some degree of lactose intolerance -- a difficulty in digesting "lactose," the major sugar present in milk -- new research findings are spelling good taste and nutrition news.

Approximately 20 percent of Americans reportedly have an inability to digest lactose. For some of these people, this inability can cause symptoms, including stomach cramps, bloating, discomfort and diarrhea after eating or drinking dairy foods. But recent studies at leading universities support the premise that many, if not most, of these individuals can learn to include dairy products in their diets without experiencing discomfort.

The findings hold special significance for certain ethnic groups, including blacks, Asians and Hispanics, who experience a high incidence of the condition. Avoidance of dairy foods can jeopardize eating a balanced diet and, in turn, general health.

Dairy Foods contribute about three-fourths of the calcium present in the food supply. They also are common sources for other essential nutrients, such as protein, riboflavin and magnesium.

Techniques to combat symptoms of lactose intolerance that are being identified through current research include consuming dairy products in smaller portions together with meals, and by eating select dairy foods that either contain or can be modified to contain low levels of lactose, or promote the digestion of lactose. For example, dairy foods that contain "active" cultures, such as yogurt, appear to be better tolerated by lactose intolerant individuals.

Research is showing that lactose intolerant persons need not give up the taste, convenience and nutrition of dairy foods if they make wise choices of which ones to eat when, and how they eat them. Experts recommend that those who believe they are lactose intolerant should be tested by a physician. Modern testing procedures are simple to undergo and are more accurate than those used in the past. The experts have also come up with a practical list of suggestions, many of which can be applied to recipes:

- Drink milk and eat dairy foods with meals or snacks, not alone. Most lactose intolerant persons can better handle 4 to 8 ounces of milk when it's consumed with other foods.
- Try drinking and eating dairy products in smaller, more frequent servings.
- Choose certain dairy foods that have been shown to be better tolerated. These include whole and chocolate milk, aged or ripened cheeses (Cheddar and Swiss, for example), ice cream, ice milk, yogurt and frozen yogurt (containing active cultures).
- Pick yogurt with active cultures. The enzyme needed to digest the milk sugar lactose -- lactase -- is released in the intestine by these active cultures.
- Check out the dairy case at your supermarket for reduced lactose products. In some parts of the country, the choice includes milk, ice cream, cottage cheese and American process cheese food slices.

You can apply these tips to cooking, as well. For example, use Swiss or Cheddar cheese to top a hamburger and use lactose-reduced milk in recipes.

The Federal Order 36 Advertising and Promotion Agency, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) and the Dairy and Nutrition Council-Mid East are offering two new informative and helpful publications for individuals with lactose intolerance.

"Getting Along With Milk: For People With Lactose Intolerance" is an informative brochure explaining the causes and symptoms of lactose intolerance as well as tips for keeping dairy foods in the diet. "Dairy Recipes for the Lactose Intolerant" contains nine recipes suitable for a low lactose diet.

To receive your free copies of "Getting Along With Milk..." and "Dairy Recipes for the Lactose Intolerant" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

The F.O. 36 Agency is the advertising and promotion program for dairy farmers in the Federal Order 36 milk marketing area in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and parts of West Virginia. It is administered by the Columbus-based Mid East UDIA, which also services the Federal Order 33 dairy farmers in Ohio and parts of the northern Kentucky. In a coordinated effort with 19 UDIA member units nationwide Mid East UDIA and the F.O. 36 Agency support a total dairy promotion program through advertising, retail marketing, foodservice development, food publicity and nutrition education and research.

Now, milk more consistently and save time, too!

It's simple economics: when you save time, you save money. And when you milk consistently, you save your cows.
That's just what the new Surge ALERT™ is designed to do.
The Surge ALERT is a lighweight end-of-milking signal that uses a unique infrared light beam to look through the milk hose to sense end of milk flow. So there's absolutely nothing in the line itself to create a restriction, fluctuation, or loss of vacuum. And there's no premature removal or shutdown.
And it's precise. Both a flashing light and beeper indicate the end of milking. So operators know exactly when to remove the milker.

That saves time. And to help eliminate the chance of harmful overmilking.
Plus, the Surge ALERT operates off a standard 24 volt pulsator and needs no extra hoses. And the built-in handle makes it easy to move from cow to cow.
Making your cows worth more.
The Surge ALERT is one more way we're keeping that commitment . . . to help you come out ahead.

SURGE We make every cow you own worth more.

Council members, who began three year terms recently at their first annual meeting, include: Doug Baker, Banfield Baker Corp., Horseheads, N.Y.; Fritz McGrail, Webb's Super Gro, Mill Hall, Pa.; Marlin Flaherty, of Service Feed & Supply, Cardiff, Md.; Dennis Rax, of J.A. Crolle, Inc., Westfield, N.Y.; Floyd Young of Northampton Farm Bureau, Tatamy, Pa.; Dick Muckinhaupt of Turner's Mill, Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Peter Roe of Roe Farm Service in Limerick, N.Y.; and Gary Zeger of Agronomy, Inc., Mercersburg, Pa. Representing the seed company, in addition to Welch, are Dr. John Baylor, director of market development, and Clair Spicer, sales manager.

"We are looking to the council to give us the very best input they can about our customers' needs and concerns," said Welch. "We will use that information to fine-tune our customer service, and to further strengthen our commitment to each and every dealer."

tomorrow it will still be right in line with what is considered the normal trend," explained Marten. "We as farmers have to live with these types of fluctations all the time. Why is it when it happens on Wall Street it's a big deal."

In taking a look at food prices, farmers should be thanked for keeping the rate of inflation down. Food prices take only 14 percent of the consumer's disposable income in the U.S. In Europe the rate is 22 percent.

"Inflation is not going to come roaring back at us and you can see that by looking at the gold and silver markets, " said Marten. "These people holding onto it have been banking on it and it has not happened."

Marten predicts oil prices will remain steady because of the instability of OPEC and that interest rates are also likely to remain near present levels for the next year.

may also be an effective method to lower your 1988 tax liability,

In Summary

Also don't forget, while calculating 1988's tax liability that self employed individuals can deduct 25% of their health care insurance premiums as a business expense. But, don't get frustrated because, if you are in the 28% federal tax bracket, for every hundred dollars that you can lower your self employment taxable income you will save $44.12. That is 28% federal income tax, 13.02% self employed social security, 2.1% state, and 1% local. In summary I hope this discussion offers a few ideas that you can adapt to lower and even out your tax liability. Be sure to check with your accountant before your spend thousands of dollars to save taxes. The Penn State Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution. Nimble Fingers Fashion Thread Into Delicate Lace

Homestead Notes

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

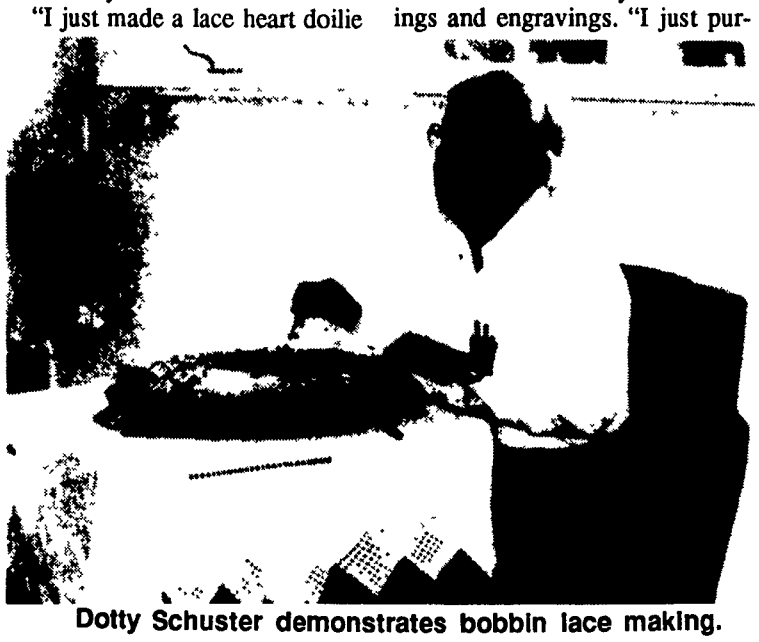
Dorothy Schuster's nimble fingers fashion bundles of plain thread into fine, delicate lace. "This is handmade lace, not machine made," she quickly clarified. Dotty first became interested in the centuries old art of lacemaking when she purchased a book on the subject about three years ago.

"It was something I wanted to do with my spare time," she added. In serious pursuit of the craft, Dotty sought out an expert lacemaker to teach her the basics. "I took lessons with Marty Fry in Rockville," she explained. "She is excellent at lacemaking."

After just eight lessons, Dotty completed her first project, a lace bird. Since then she has made lovely bookmarks, flowers, and doilies, And she continues to learn various types of bobbin lacemaking, such as Torchon, Bucks, and Honiton. "I'd like to do Flanders and Tornder lace," she added.

"If you watch it," Dotty explained, bobbin lacemaking "is like weaving - over, under, over, under." She uses specially made bobbins to guide the threads around stick pins which outline the design to be made. All of the work is done on a 'lace pillow' which is a foam core covered with blue cloth. "The cloth is usually blue, green or brown so that the threads can be seen easily," she said. The paper pattern which is outlined with stick pins on the pillow is called a 'pricking.' "The same colors are used for prickings, which are made from card stock," said Dotty.

"I just made a lace heart doilie with homespun linen in the center." To complete this project, she used seven pairs of bobbins and as many as one thousand stick pins. "Depending upon the size and intricacy of the project, Dotty said as many as 86 pairs of bobbins may be needed. "And they really get in the way," she added.



Dotty Schuster demonstrates bobbin lace making.

"A lot of people use magnifiers," she explained. "I don't. I only work in the daytime because of the shadows cast in the evening."

Those who have witnessed Dotty working at full tilt, marvel at her ability to do such finely detailed close work so quickly and neatly. Her husband, Lou, said "she gets those bobbins really clicking." The smooth wooden bobbins which she manipulates so easily are also of interest to many as collectors items.

"Some people use doll clothespins to wrap threads on," said Dotty. "Bobbins are made of hard and soft woods and exotic woods, such as Zebra Wood." She said the slim, turned bobbins can also be made of bone, ivory, cocabolo and ebony. Dotty explained that bobbins often tell a story with carvings and engravings. "I just purchased a bobbin which commemorates the Spanish Armada. In England, some have the name of, for example, the sheep farm where the lacemaker lives," she said. Bobbins are often weighted with beads to keep them from moving on the pillow. However, bobbins used for Honiton lace are thinner with no beads."

Dotty said she usually purchases her bobbins at conventions that English bobbin makers attend. "There are bobbin makers in the United States." She named Holly Van Sciver of Ithaca, New York, as one with whom she is familiar.

Dotty's interest in lacemaking took her to England last year. "Lacemaking is quite an art in England," she said. "A lot of teachers come over to the national convention every year." Dotty joined the lace group of the Chesapeake Bay area three years ago. "The group was formed eleven years ago," she said. "We meet once a month at a member's home." The group works on projects together and shares ideas and techniques. When Dotty runs into a problem she said that she often calls a friend from the group to troubleshoot over the phone.

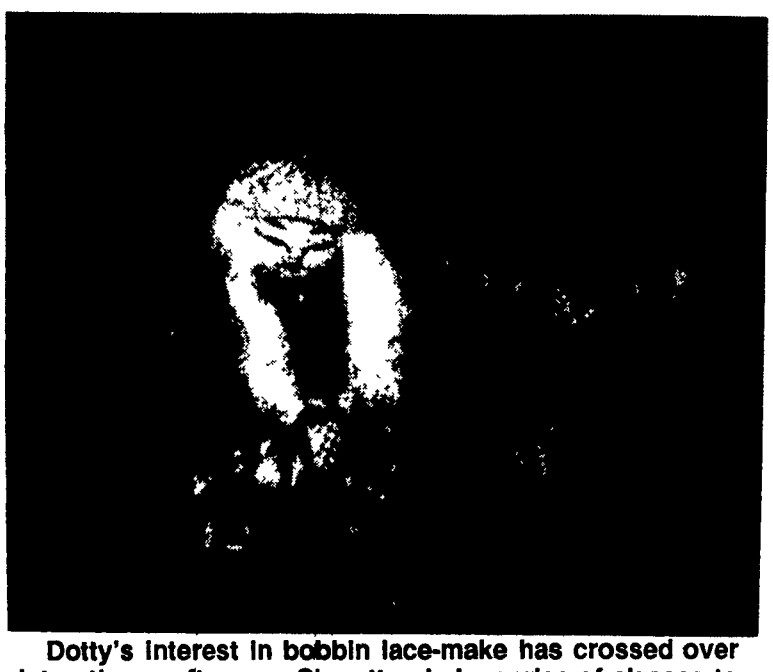
Lacemaking for Dotty is a hobby done for "accomplishment and enjoyment. It wouldn't be profitable for me," she commented. To make a three-inch lace heart, Dotty said "it takes about two hours." And to complete a ten-inch doily with a heart motif, she said, "with no interruptions, it takes about twenty hours."

The finished products are displayed in the Schusters' Glenwood, Maryland home. "Lou photographs them," she said. Some of her samples are in an album which she carries with her when she is asked to demonstrate lacemaking at various shows.

Dotty has performed her craft for thousands at the Montgomery County Fair for the past three years, at New Market Days last year, and at the International Lace Show held in the Textile Museum in Washington, D.C. And a broken leg didn't keep her from demonstrating at the county fair again this year.

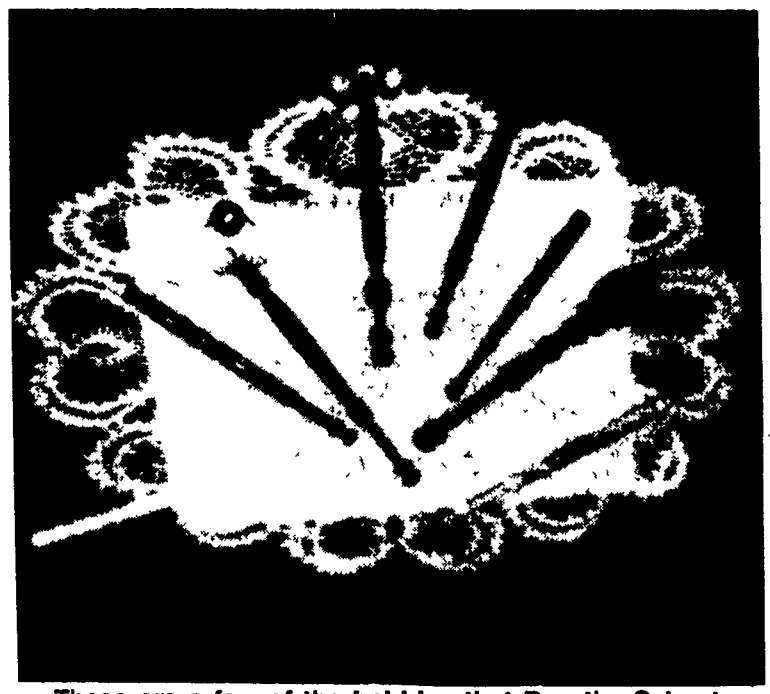
Her interest in lacemaking has led her to related crafts such as silk embroidery. Last summer, Dotty attended a four day workshop to complete a butterfly wall hanging made of silk and metallic threads. Dotty and Lou's rambling rancher is warmly decorated with samples of her lace, needlework, stenciling and folk art painting.

Perhaps the most important project which Dotty will attempt is "a piece of handmade lace for my granddaughter, Rachael's, wedding dress. Maybe I will make a garter," she said. "If I start on it now, I may finish in time." At that rate, maybe Dotty could make the whole dress - Rachael is three months old.

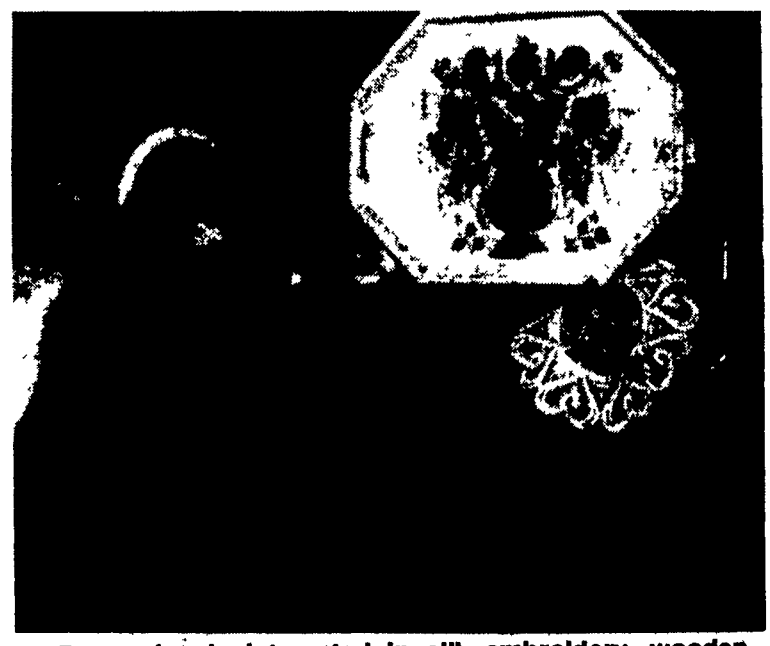


Dotty's interest in bobbin lace-make has crossed over into other craft areas. She attended a series of classes to learn to make Japanese dolls. She made this Japanese Lion Dancer, the velveteen rabbit, the lace bookmark and other lace samples lie at the feet of the doll.

Dotty Schuster holds her 3-month-old granddaughter, Rachael. Dotty plans to make a special piece of bobbin lace for Rachael's wedding dress. She explained, "Something for which Rachael can remember her grandmother."



These are a few of the bobbins that Dorothy Schuster uses to make bobbin lace. The hand painted bobbin at top left comemorates the Spanish Armada. The bobbin at top right is made of ivory. The various wooden bobbins are intricately carved, turned and decorated with metal. Some of the bobbins are weighted with beads. They rest on a piece of bobbin lace.



Dotty also is interested in silk embroidery, wooden decoys, doll making and folk art painting. The tray in the background is a sample of her painting.

Try a MAGNUM tractor, and see why MAGNUM means more.

Case IH has put more into the MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractors developed by any other company in over twenty years. Here's what you can expect from them:

MAGNUM power. You can count on outstanding field performance from the 505-cubic-inch turbocharged engine that gives you over 8% more displacement than our leading competitor. With reserve pulling power to carry you through.

MAGNUM performance. Case IH puts an 18-speed full powershift at your fingertips. That's 20% more than our leading competitior — for more precise speed selection.

MAGNUM comfort. The spacious cab has more window area — 48 square feet — to give you more visibility. You also get more room and better seating.

And there's even more. Now MAGNUM tractors are covered by the best warranty in the business — 5 years or 5,000 hours, whichever comes first.* Your dealer has details.

It all adds up: Case IH MAGNUM tractors are setting new standards for the 130-195 PTO hp power range. See them now.

*Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturer's warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Like to keep up with the latest trends?

If so, dig out your comic books and stock up on oat bran. Oat bran?

Those, according to a news release out of New York, based on the ADWEEK magazine, are two of the "hotter" trends making waves across the country.

A top-of-the-head response to that combination suggests that we want to keep our bodies at peak fitness operating power while letting our brains idle along in neutral. But that's just my opinion, which may not be worth much, since I haven't had my oat bran today.

Anyway, it was reassuring to note that here on the farm we are indeed managing to stay somewhat in tune with - even ahead of in some cases - the latest crazes.

A container of quick-cooking oats in the cupboard says it contains one-hundred percent rolled oats, but that's after removal of the outside covering, or bran. Since the calf and heifer feed is full of nutritious, molasses-laced, granola-like stuff, which may or may not include oat bran, maybe we should have bowls of that for breakfast instead of oatmeal.

Pet food is trendy as well, if it's the gourmet, speciality type. Our beloved family canine just apparently will never be a trend setter - he still prefers an aromatic, sun-ripened groundhog over almost any other dog-menu item.

Pre-damaged jeans, for that comfortable, broken-in look, are commanding the sort of price which only can be explained by their popularity on the trendy list.

By gosh, we were years out ahead of the trend on this one.

In less time than a manufacturer of denim garments can think about acidwashing, mutilating and prefabricating a batch of trendy chopped-up jeans, we have the dirty deed already done. Farm-shredded jeans are produced to appropriate degress of mellowness with splashes from acid pipeline detergent, welding sparks, bent corners of machinery, and protruding bolt ends.

Also "hot" is one type of prescription concoction which grows or thickens the hair on one's head and another for keeping the skin wrinkles of aging at bay.

Though never having tried it personally, I've heard tell that rubbing a piece of ice across the topline of an animal encourages the growth of thicker hair for fitting it to the showring. Ice is a natural material, and no doubt much cheaper by comparison to prescription concoctions, just in case anyone wants to pursue this reported fitting technique on their own scalp.

Smoothing skin wrinkles is as tough as growing hair, but a long-time dairy barn staple is apparently recognized for its benefits by some in the medical field. An acquaintance reports that Bag Balm, that pungently-scented, sofening ointment for chapped and sore udders on cows, was mentioned by a physician as helpful in softening an area of skin following surgery.

Popcorn turns up on the trendy list, too.

It's familiar family knowledge hereabouts that Mom is the champion popcorn gobbler in the family, and can detect its scent with the skill of a champion beagle nosing out a cockbird. Nutritionists have justified this weakness of mine, advocating popcorn as a healthy, relatively low-calorie snack, unless one goes overboard with the flavorings.

With the advent of microwaving popcorn, a bagful of the warm, crunchy, flavored stuff became even easier than ever to fix for a late-night snack. That lasted until the evening our future home-economist took to announcing the calorie and content details of the pre-packaged, artificially-flavored containers. Reading labels is at least more enlightening than reading trendy comic books, it would seem.

And, so it's back to the hot-air popper, a faint dribbling of real butter and "lite" salt, trendy or not.

Becuase, while trends may come and go, calories aren't hip. That's just where they permanently seat themselves.

Prepare for the Winter Flu!

"Hold me, hold me, hold me," was the constant chant as the first winter virus took a grip on our 14-month-old. And holding and rocking, just being with her seemed to be one of the best remedies. Although not a nurse at heart, the childhood experiences of being cared for by a trained R.N., came into focus as I endeavored to now be the caregiver for the sick child.

My family occasionally reminisces about the time my sister and I were sharing the mumps (or maybe it was the measles)! We were used to sharing things as we shared a bedroom with matching twin beds. Anyway, our mother had declared a "quiet" rest in bed as part of the cure from this illness. As we started to feel better, I remember that our shared sense of mischieviousness led us to use our quiet resting time to entertain ourselves on our "beds turned trampoline." Bouncing on the mattress was great fun until the bed boards fell out and the mattress crashed through the frame. Very suddenly, we felt sick again!

Taking care of sick children involves more than good medicine. Besides the physical care, parents are called upon to use a variety of resources to fill up the hours in the day of a sick child.

Books can be the number one staple of your repetoire of activities. This may be a particularly good time to borrow a few new books from the library. Get a few books that your child can read to herself and others that you can read to her. Short reading sessions scattered throughout the day will keep the suspense of a longer story high and sharpen your child's listening skills as well.

The best way to keep the recovery period running smoothly is to vary the activities. Read a story, give her a craft to do on her own, do something together, have complete quiet time, watch a favorite television program, share a snack, and encourage naps. Of course, stuffed animals and dolls are good bed companions for the sick child, as are a play telephone, a hand mirror, puppets, and plastic cars or trucks.

You may find it helpful for a child to focus on doing things for other people rather than constantly thinking about "how bad I feel." Provide paper and crayons on a bed tray for drawing pictures for Great-grandma. Make a craft item to give away.

One mother's prescription for entertaining a sick child is a "bed toy box." This box is filled with toys that are appropriate for using in bed. During an illness is the only time that the children use these toys, so that the excitement of something new helps to entertain them. In my childhood, a sunshine box was created for a sick person. The items in the box were numbered and wrapped, and each day there was something to look forward to in a new gift.

When a sick child is at home, toys and activities are mainly for entertainment purposes. However, when a child is seriously ill and must be hospitalized, toys can take on a much more significant meaning. Hospitalization can be frightening and for a child, is often associated with pain and isolation from home and family.

If you have advance knowledge of a hospital visit, introduce the subject with a book about a child going to the hospital. Many physicians could refer you to their favorite one. Also, some pretend play items such as a doctor's bag or nurse's cap may make your child more comfortable with the real thing. It may also allow them a chance to act out their feelings and you may be more aware of what really frightens them.

The stress of a childhood illness can also be great when both parents work outside the home and your child cannot go to the usual day care. While there is not one answer suitable for every occasion or illness, it is good to think of several alternatives in advance. Do you have a friend or family member who would be able to help you? What is the parental leave policy of your company? Are there any sick child care centers in your area? Is there any flexibility in the work schedule? While this is a difficult time indeed, prior thoughts and investigation into the alternatives may make it less stressful.

Illness is no fun for anyone. Your parental instincts, prior experiences, patience and a physician in whom you feel confident will help your child recover quickly and keep you on your feet too!

So the next time your sick child is using a bed as a trampoline, let experience tell you that you're well on the way to recovery!

Stop The Mouse Invasion

"I was sitting in my kitchen the other evening and heard a little squeaky sound coming from my broom closet," says Maggie Moor, Kent County Extension agent. "This reminded me that with October come the cooler nights that change field mice into house mice."

The first step in controlling mice is to stop them from entering the house, says Moor. Seal off any holes in the walls, floors and foundations. In addition, see that any food and water sources in the home are not left in rodent-accessible places. Store all foodstuff in mouse-proof containers and/or in the refrigerator when possible.

Moor suggests checking pet-food packages for rodent signs, such as chewed holes in the bottom of the bag or box. Keep all food in a metal container; a steel trash container is ideal.

"Outside the home, control weeds and remove any debris from around the building," the agent says. "Don't let surplus garden crops stand for long periods or overwinter in the garden. Plow under or remove anything rodents may live on. And don't store extra bales of straw mulch, as mice will burrow into them for the grain that was missed during harvesting."

If you do get mice in your home, Moor says there are several types of traps available including snap traps, live traps and glue boards. Most traps require baiting with food such as gumdrops, chocolate candy, cheese, bread, and peanut butter. Place traps on regular mice routes.

Pizza No Matter How You Slice It

No matter how you slice it, Americans love pizza. Thick or thin crust, that's a matter for debate, but we all seem to like it by the fistful, drooping under the weight of bubbling Mozzarella cheese, tomato sauce, possibly pepperoni and more.

The first American pizza shop was opened in 1905 in New York City. Then it satisfied the cravings of Italian immigrants who were homesick for their national flavors.

Today, one in 10 persons who eat out choose pizza.

Pizza is unjustly dubbed junk food. It can be a nutritious part of a balanced diet. According to the recent statistics, a quarter of a 14-inch cheese pizza with enriched crust provides 354 calories, about 28 percent of the protein, 19 percent vitamin A, 20 percent of vitamin C, 25 percent of Vitamin B1, 30 percent of vitamin B2, 19 percent niacin, 33 percent of calcium and 15 percent iron you need based on a 2,000 calorie diet.

The hodgepodge of toppers is as diverse as the people who enjoy it. Look over these recipes. You're sure to find a new idea to satisfy those pizza cravings.

ONION BACON PIZZA

1 package (10-ounces) refrigerated whole wheat bread dough
¼ cup butter
4 cups thinly sliced Spanish onions
½ teaspoon Italian seasoning
8-ounces sour cream onion-bacon dip
6 strips bacon, cooked, drained and crumbled
6-ounces shredded Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Carefully unroll bread dough and press onto bottom and up sides of buttered 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until dough is golden. Meanwhile, saute onions in butter and Italian seasoning until onions are very soft and butter is absorbed, about 15 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent onions from burning. Spread warm crust with sour cream dip. Spread onions over sour cream mixture. Sprinkle with bacon and Swiss cheese. Return to 350 degree oven for 15 to 18 minutes, or until cheese is melted and onions are hot.

DEEP-DISH PIZZA

Pizza dough:
1 cake yeast
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup lukewarm water

Dissolve yeast in water with sugar.

Beat in:
1 beaten egg
½ cup melted shortening
2 cups lukewarm water
1½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar

Sift 8 cups flour. Stir some flour gradually into the ingredients until a thick batter is formed. Knead in remaining flour. Place dough in a well-greased bowl. Let dough stand until double in size. Knead the edges in, turn the dough and let stand until double in size. Shape the dough into 6 to 8 portions (depending on how thick you like the crust).

Pizza Ingredients:
1 large jar pizza sauce
1 (16-ounces) package Mozzarella cheese slices
2 pounds shredded Mozzarella or Cheddar cheese

Pepperoni, ham, mushrooms, green peppers, onions - your choice.

Place Mozzarella slices on pizza dough. Cover generously with pizza sauce. Add your favorite toppings. Cover pizza with shredded cheese. Fold pizza dough edges down over the toppings. Bake at 350 degree for about 30 minutes.

CHICKEN-CHEESE PIZZAS

1 package (10-ounces) frozen chicken patties
1 package (7½-ounces) refrigerated biscuits
1 can (8-ounces) pizza sauce
1 cup (4-ounces) shredded mozzarella cheese

Pickle relish, chopped green pepper or sliced olives (optional)

Remove chicken patties from freezer and let stand 20 minutes. Meanwhile, on lightly floured surface, roll each biscuit into a 4-inch circle. Place on greased cookie sheets. Spread each biscuit with about 1 tablespoon pizza sauce. Sprinkle about 1 tablespoon of the cheese on top of each. Cut each chicken pattie inti 8 wedges. Arrange 3 or 4 wedges on each biscuit. Top with pickle relish, green pepper and olives, if desired. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until biscuits are golden. Makes 5 servings.

It's a daily occurrence—kids are home from school and starved. Why not let them try an innovative pizza recipe starting with an English muffin or biscuit topped with pizza sauce and cheese.

TUNA MELT PIZZA

1 package (11-ounces) refrigerated soft bread stick dough

¼ cup chopped green onion
½ teaspoon dried basil
8 green pepper rings
2 cups (8-ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Divide dough into 4 equal portions. On lightly floured surface roll each piece to a 6-inch diameter circle. Place on buttered cookie sheet. Brush dough with melted butter. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet and cool completely on wire rack.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine tuna, spaghetti sauce, olives, onion and basil; mix well. Divide tuna mixture evenly between 4 baked circles. Top each with 2 green pepper rings and ½ cup (2-ounces) shredded cheese. Place on unbuttered cookie sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes, or until cheese is melted and tuna mixture is hot. Serve immediately.

ANSWER - Marian Hurst, Narvon, wanted to know how to substitute melted chocolate chips by using powdered cocoa. Thanks Ann Hershey, Lititz, who gave the following substitution: For each 6-ounce package or 1 cup of semisweet-chocolate pieces or six 1-ounce squares of semi-sweet chocolate, use: 6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa plus 7 tablespoons sugar and ¼ cup oil. Also, thanks to Mary Bow of Annville who wrote, "Cocoa is so healthy and convenient to use that many cooks use it as a substitute for chocolate in their favorite recipes. All-natural, low-fat and low-calorie cocoa is the only chocolate baking ingredient approved by the American Heart Association." Here's an easy conversion formula:

•For unsweetened baking chocolate: 3 tablespoons cocoa plus 1 tablespoon shortening (liquid or solid) equals 1 ounce.

•For premelted unsweetened chocolate: 3 tablespoons cocoa plus 1 tablespoon oil or melted shortening equals 1 ounce.

ANSWER - Ruth Kuhns, Millmont, requested a recipe for southern biscuits. Thanks Kathy Erickson, Chesterfield, N. J., who wrote, "My grandmother, who grew up in Georgia, made these biscuits every morning for breakfast. She never measured anything, but they turned out the same every time. Always Great! I am from Florida. That's just about as southern as you can get."

Buttermilk Biscuits

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
⅓ cup shortening
¾ cup buttermilk

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In a bowl combine dry ingredients and sift together. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk and stir with a fork until well blended. Transfer dough to a lightly floured board. Knead gently 8 to 10 times.

Roll dough with a floured rolling pin until ½ -inch thick. Cut with a floured cutter. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 12 to 16 biscuits.

ANSWER - Margaret Gockley of Mohnton requested recipes for fondant. Thanks Margaret L. Strause, Leesport, for several contributions.

Fondant Candles

In top of double boiler, melt fondant over hot (175 degree) not boiling water. Here are treats to make with it:

Autumn Candy Wafers - Add yellow food coloring and lemon extract. Stir gently just to blend. Drop from teaspoon unto waxed paper to make round wafers.

Fondant Stuffed Dates - Add red food coloring to make a luscious pink and a few drops of vanilla. Stir gently just to blend. Remove from heat. Cool slightly. Stuff into moist, pitted dates. Roll dates in confectioners' sugar.

Nut Creams - Add green food coloring and vanilla. Stir gently just to blend. Remove from heat. Cool until firm enough to handle. Form into small (½ -inch) balls. Press each ball between 2 pecan halves.

Fondant Kisses - Add finely chopped nuts and vanilla. Stir gently just to blend. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Drop from teaspoon onto waxed paper to form small mounds. Shape mounds with fingers to give them peaks. Serve as is or dip lower halves of kisses in melted dipping chocolate. Or dip entire kiss in the chocolate coating. A good way to do this is to insert a toothpick through the peak of each kiss, dip candy in chocolate and then stand it, peak side down, with end of pick inserted in styrofoam until chocolate is firm. Cooling the kisses on the wooden picks gives them an attractive chocolate peak. When chocolate is firm, remove picks.

ANSWER - J. Musser, Lititz, requested a recipe for making smooth, thick chocolate milkshakes. Thanks to a Manheim reader for the following recipe.

Chocolate Milkshake

1 cup milk
2 tablespoons chocolate syrup
1 large scoop chocolate ice cream

Put all ingredients into blender and beat just until mixed. Serve immediately.

ANSWER - A Fleetwood reader requested a frozen coleslaw recipe. Thanks to more than 25 readers who answered this request. Space does not permit me to name each one, but most of the contributions were similar.

Freezer Cole Slaw

1 medium-sized head cabbage
1 tablespoon salt
1 tray ice cubes
1 carrot, peeled and shredded
1 green pepper, seeded and finely diced

Syrup:

2 cups sugar
1 cup vinegar
½ cup water
1 teaspoon celery seed
2 teaspoons mustard seed

Into glass bowl or enameled kettle, shred cabbage and stir in salt and ice cubes. Cover and let stand 1 hour. Squeeze out liquid from cabbage and put into a bowl. Add shredded carrot, diced pepper and sliced onion.

In separate enameled kettle, combine sugar, vinegar, water, celery and mustard seeds. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Pour over vegetables. Put cole slaw into freezer containers. Cover and keep frozen. Will keep as long as one year. Defrost for 8 hours before serving. Makes approximately 2 quarts or 12 servings.

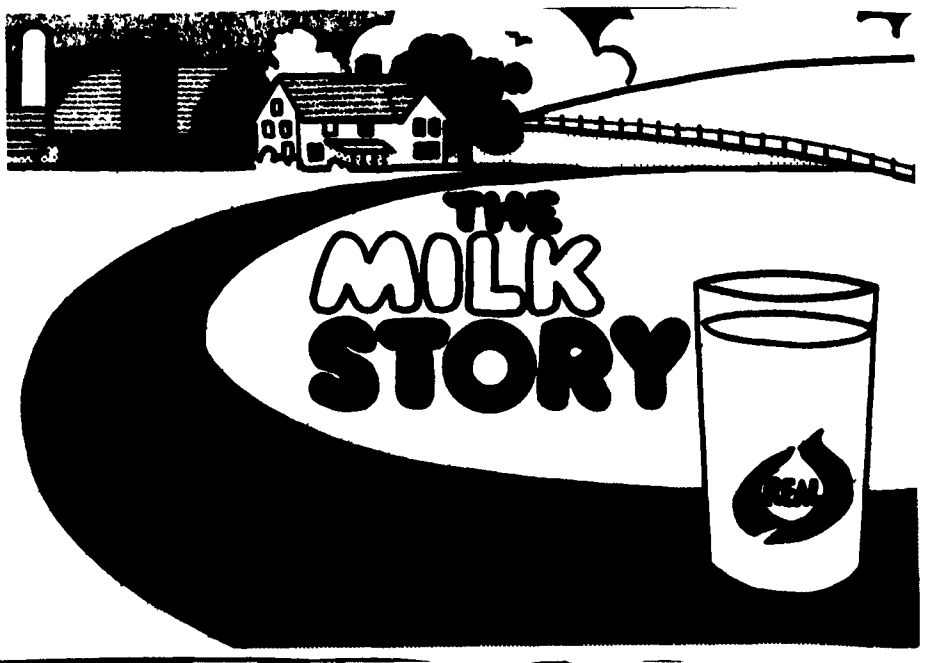
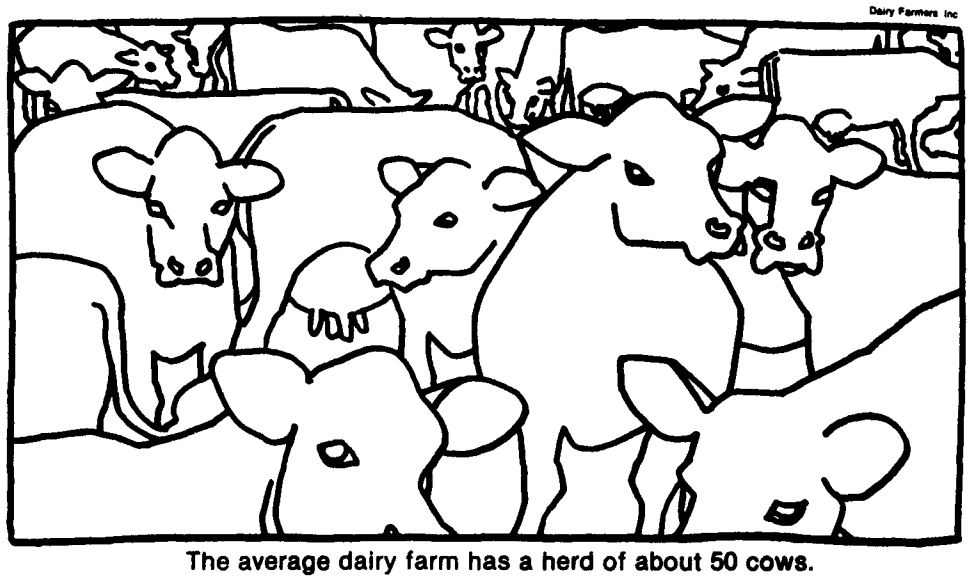
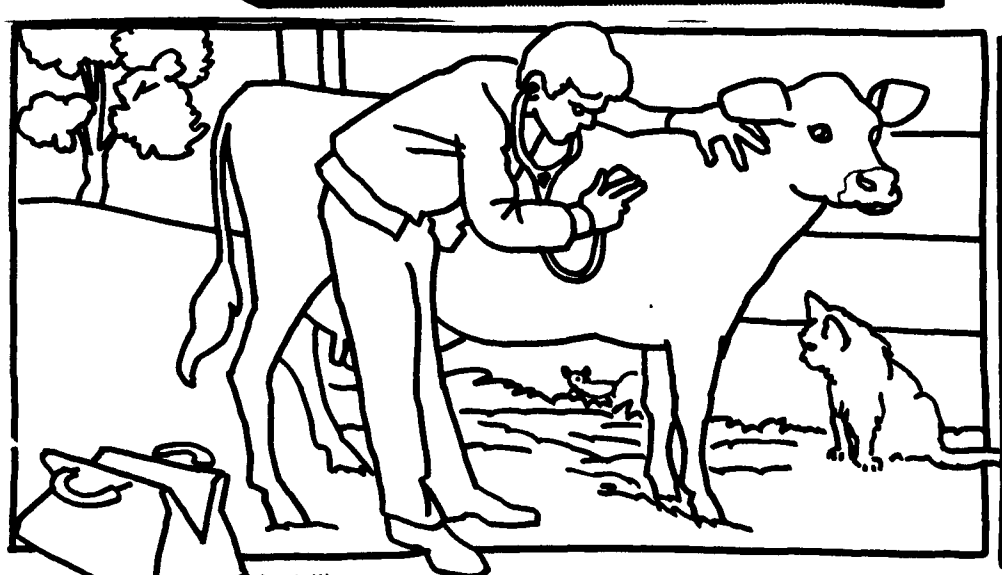
Kid's Korner

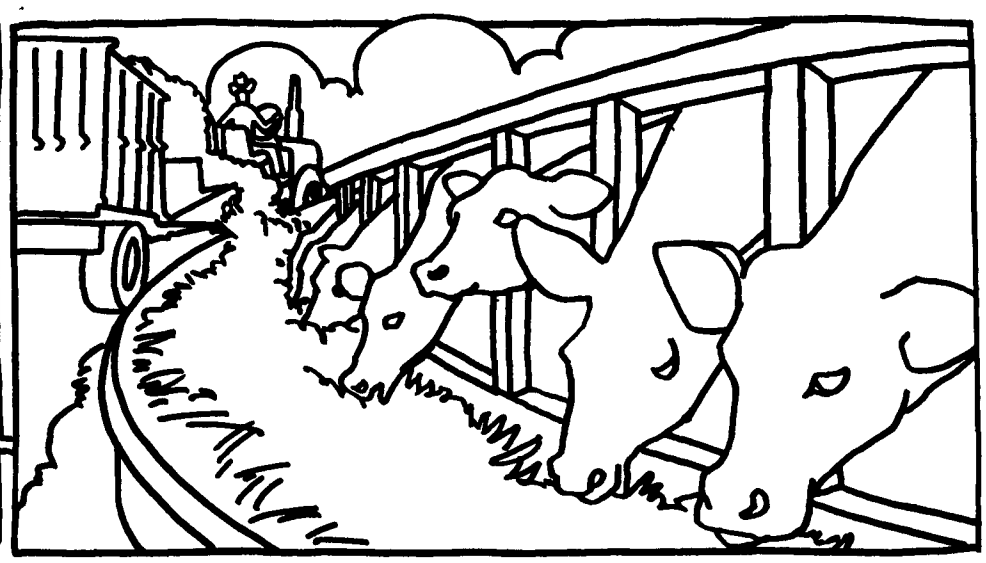




The average dairy farm has a herd of about 50 cows.

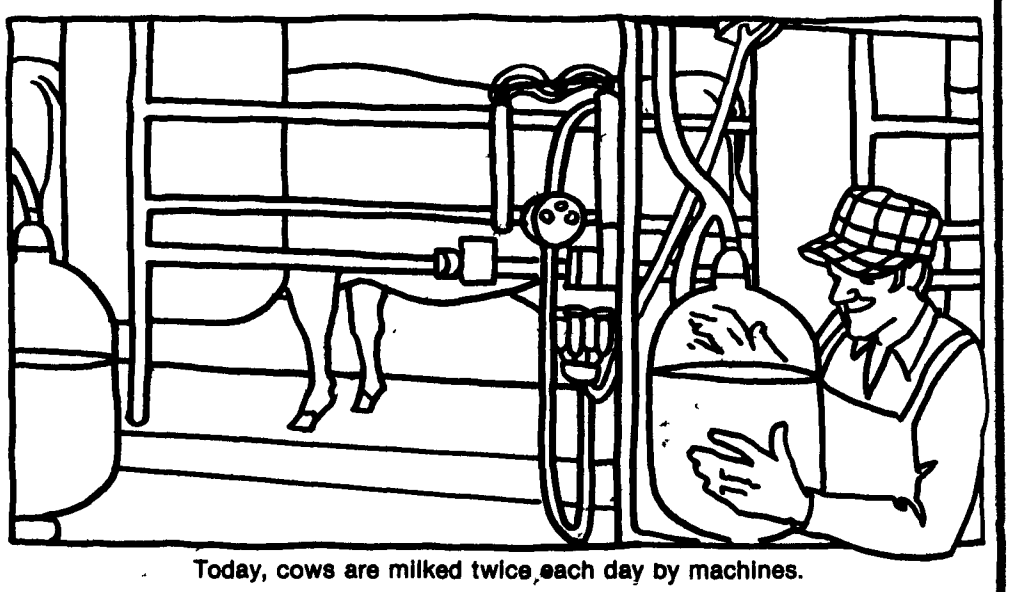


Just like you, cows need regular check-ups by their doctors, called veterinarians.



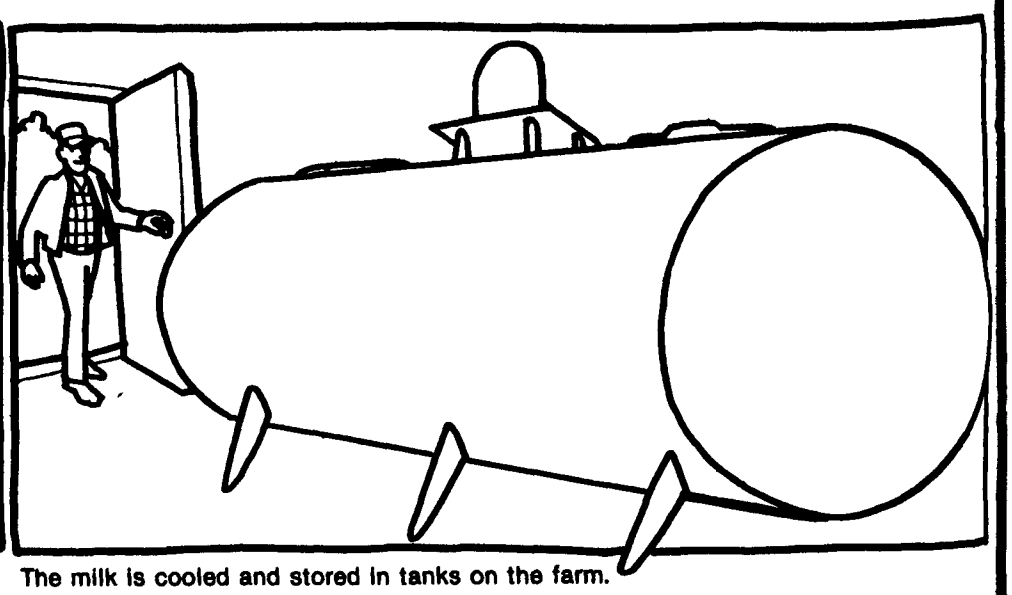
Dairy farmers feed cows a balanced diet to help them make milk.

Years ago, cows were milked by hand.



Today, cows are milked twice each day by machines.

A well-fed cow gives up to 100 glasses of milk each day.



The milk is cooled and stored in tanks on the farm.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It is odd that over the years some things change drastically while others seem to remain almost the same. I'm thinking of household chores that one does in the fall.

Cleaning is one job that comes to mind. Nowadays a vacuum cleaner will do a good job on rugs but when I lived at my parent's home we had to take up the rag carpets and beat and sweep them outdoors. The ones in the kitchen were taken up every week while those in the parlor only twice a year.

In the fall we always filled the coal and wood stove ovèn with ears of corn. Over a period of days the corn dried sufficiently that it could be easily shelled in a big metal tub. Then, I would hope that I'd be allowed to go along to the local mill to have it ground into cornmeal. It was a thrill to sit high up on the seat of a two-horse Columbia wagon. Now, I go to the store and buy a small bag of cornmeal to make corncake or mush.

Each November I do some of the same things that my grandmother did. I bring in some mint tea and dry it on newspapers for use in the winter. On a cold night the smell of it brewing reminds me of my childhood. But instead of picking quinces off a tree, now I must buy some as it was always a treat that we looked forward to once a year.

No longer do I chase chickens in order to catch one, chop its head off, and dress it for Sunday dinner. My mother dressed many, many chickens to feed her seven girls. I did the same thing the first years of my marriage but now how easy it is to simply buy one at the supermarket. If you've never gone through the long process from chicken yard to table you can not appreciate the present convenience.

One thing that hasn't changed much in my life is baking for the family. We still bake two and three layer cakes for birthdays from scratch. There are shoo-fly pies to eat and apple dumplings. Food seems to be one constant need for life on the farm.

Willow Street Graduate

Donald Dodson, a 1987 graduate of Conestoga Valley High school and the Landscape Design/ Turf Management Program at Willow Street Vo-Tech, placed second individually at the Eastern Regional Future Farmers of America (FFA) Competition on September 17 and 18, 1988, in Springfield, Mass.

The second place finish earned Dodson a place on the Gold team in the Nursery Landscape competition.

He also will be part of the team representing Pennsylvania at the FFA National Competition scheduled to begin November 10 in Wichita, Kansas.

The category, sometimes called ornamental landscape, consists of a written test, along with plant identification and demonstrations of proper techniques.

Dodson, the son of Don and Janet Dodson of Lancaster, is employed by the Lancaster Sheraton Golf Resort and Conference Center. In addition, he also operates his own landscape design business. He plans to enroll in Penn State University in 1989.

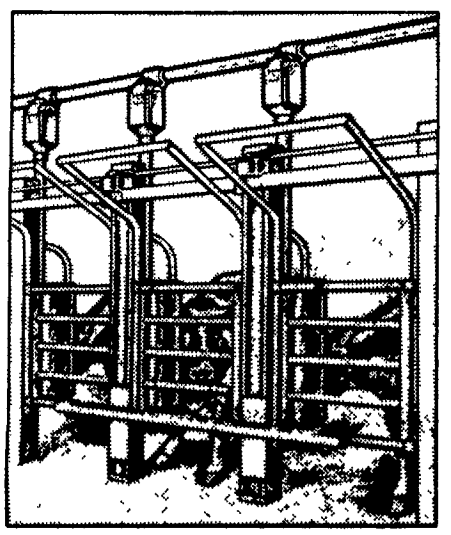
DAIRY FARMERS

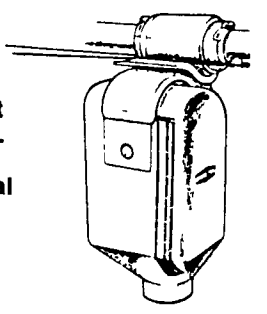
We have a low cost feeding system to save money on feed costs!!

CHORE-TIME

IMPROVE FEEDING ACCURACY WITH OUR DROP FEEDER



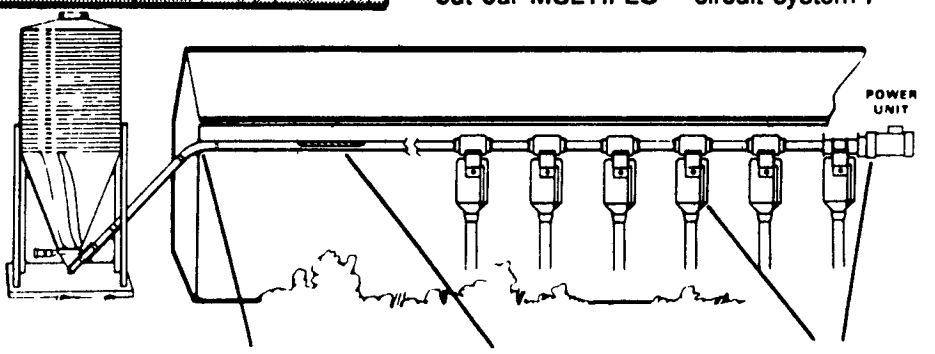
Install our polyethylene feeders anywhere on straight runs of auger tubing. A simple ball valve is lifted by the central trip handle or power unit. Can be set to feed 1½ to 10 lbs. of feed.



Now you can feed cows automatically in the milking parlor — saves labor, saves feed (because when cows are fed by hand, they're usually overfed), and it saves time to speed milking. This system refills itself immediately after it's tripped — so it's ready to feed the next group when you're ready.

BEST FEED DELIVERY SYSTEM EVER

Highly energy-efficient, extremely long wearing, and trouble-free — that's how our FLEX-AUGER® feed conveying systems are known the world over. Available in 5 capacities — 15 to 220 lbs./minute. Also check out our MULTIFLO® "circuit system".



The coreless auger moves feed around corners with no gears or wheels like other systems have. Ours is a study in simplicity!

The high tensile strength spring-like steel auger turns in special-formula ultraviolet and wear resistant PVC tube.

PVC tube makes it easy to drill holes for feeder drops wherever needed. Last feeder starts power unit to refill feeders.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

The speed of microwaving combined with the convenience of dairy products creates some memorable food sensations. Ten recipes for quick cooking and sensational eating are featured in a new recipe leaflet, Dairy Raves from Microwaves, by the American Dairy Association.

The leaflet includes a variety of recipes, mostly for appetizers and main dishes, and some time-saving tips.

For your free copy, send your name, address and zip code to: Dairy Raves from Microwaves, The American Dairy Association of Minnesota, 2015 Rice St., St. Paul, MN 55113.

I've tried lots of the leaflet recipes, but I chose just two to share with you. The two together, served with a lettuce salad or non-creamy fruit salad, make a cozy quick supper. Make Micro-Mini Cheesecakes the night before and Taco Casserole in about 20 minutes before eating. Or if you're a last-minute cook, I discovered that you could make the dessert and chill it in the freezer while making the main dish. The cheesecakes don't hold their shape well with this quick chilling, so I omit the paper muffin liners and serve the cheesecakes in custard cups. I also omit the topping for this quick version.

Dairy products often need to be microwaved on a lower power setting, depending on the specific product and how it's used.

Note in today's recipes, cream cheese is softened on Medium power. However, the cream cheese mixture is microwaved on High because other ingredients are added to the delicate cream cheese and the mixture is stirred several times throughout. (Cream cheese can be softened on High power for 30 to 45 seconds, but then needs to be watched closely — if it starts to pop; stop microwaving immediately and stir well.)

Cheese for topping is often just added to a casserole after microwaving and allowed to stand until it melts. In Taco Casserole, cheese is sprinkled on top before microwaving. This works fine in this recipe — cheese melts, but doesn't become rubbery and tough in the time it takes to heat the casserole — because a lower power setting is used.

Micro-Mini Cheesecakes

6 tablespoons butter
1⅓ cups crushed coconut bar cookie crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar
2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese
⅔ cup sugar
⅓ cup milk
4 eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar

For crust, place butter in microwave-safe 1-quart container. Microwave (High) 30 to 60 seconds or until butter is melted. Stir in crumbs and 2 tablespoons sugar. Divide crust mixture evenly between ten 6-ounce custard cups lined with paper muffin cups. Press firmly against bottom and sides. Microwave (High) 1½ to 2 minutes or until crusts feel hot.

For filling, place cream cheese in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or bowl. Microwave on Medium (50% power, 325-350 watts) 1 to 2 minutes or until softened. Beat in ⅔ cup sugar and milk until smooth. Blend in eggs, juice and vanilla. Microwave (High) 5 to 7 minutes, whisking well every 2 minutes, or until mixture is very hot and thick. Divide evenly between custard cups. Cool cheesecakes at room temperature 30 minutes.

For topping, combine sour cream and 1 tablespoon sugar until well blended. Spread evenly over top of each cheesecake. Refrigerate cheesecakes several hours or overnight. Remove from custard cups before serving. Makes 10 cheesecakes.

Each serving: 442 calories, 7g protein, 33g fat, 32g carbohydrate, 305mg sodium, 183mg cholesterol.

Hint: Set crust-filled custard cups on a microwave-safe tray for ease in taking them to and from microwave. If your microwave is small, you may need to cook only five at a time; if so be sure to cut time in half.

For five cheesecakes: Divide ingredients in half. Use half of minimum times, adding more time if necessary. For filling, microwave (High) 2½ to 3 minutes, stirring after each minute.

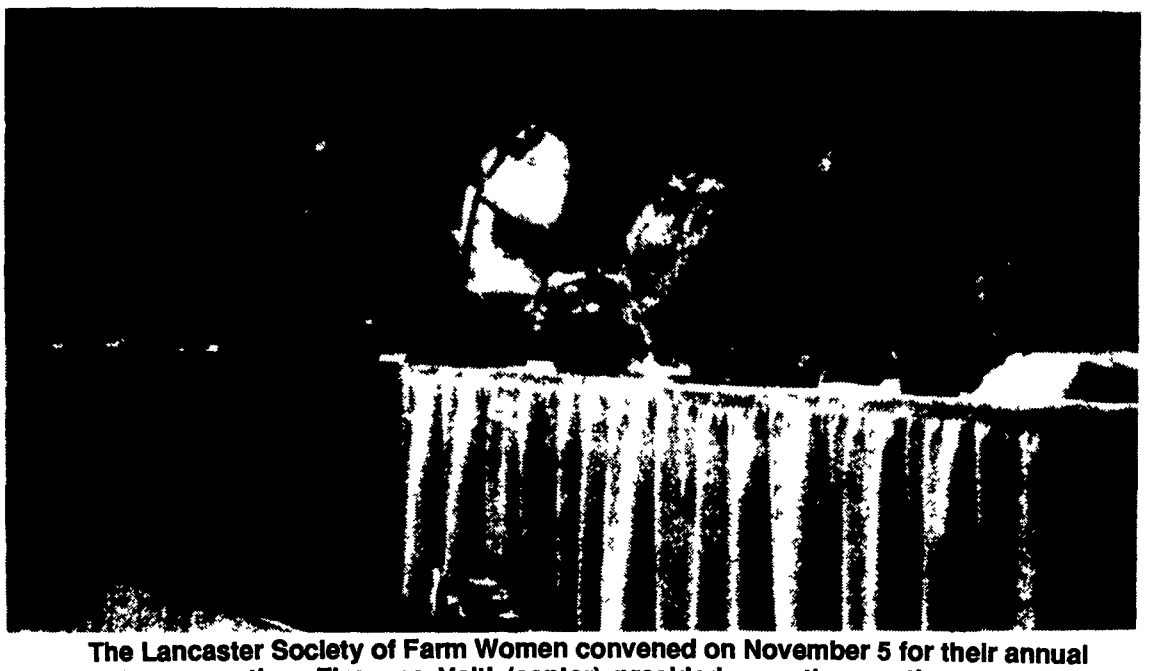
Lancaster Farm Women Hear Polk



The Lancaster Society of Farm Women convened on November 5 for their annual county convention. Florence Vaitl (center) presided over the meeting.

LANCASTER — James Polk, a Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative reporter for NBC News, Washington, D.C., was the guest speaker at the 71st annual convention of the Society of Farm Women of Lancaster County, Saturday, at the Farm and Home Center.

His topic focused on politics, the press, and public values.

Polk told the assembly that he investigates questions for answers that people do not wish to ask publicly. He said when findings are reported the American people have the right to decide what the want to accept and also the right to decide that the information "does not apply." He also suggested listeners should take information from the press as they would conversations with a friend or business associate.

The audience snickered when Polk remarked that in his opinion Watergate was America's shining hour as a democracy. He raised the question, "Where would a person be removed from high office without riots, or militia? The removal of Nixon in mid terms says a lot about the maturity of the American people."

Concering Quayle and the press, Polk said he believes voters should make decisions in whom they place their trust based on their own philosophy and expect those people to have character and personality tha is relative to their own. He further expressed faith in the judgment of our people based on what the press reports provided a background for us to think and decide.

His talk was laced with humor about condensing hours of investigating into 90-second reports.

Mrs. Moore, a 104-year-old lady, was overheard saying to Polk, "I try never to miss your reports... some things I like and some things I don't like."

Donations made

During the day-long convention, Florence Vaitl, Society 3 president, presented a check for $4,065 to Hospice of Lancaster County from the 33 active societies of Farm Women, who raised the monies as the designated "County Project" for 1988. Mary Graner, executive director, and Charlotte Reinhold, director of Community Development, told the group about the services of Hospice and the new Bereavement program, to which the Farm Women gift will be channeled. In addition, the 898 Lancaster Farm Women members contributed more than $7,000 for agricultural and suburban projects, including scholarships.

Donna Kreider, Quarryville, Society 31, was named county secretary. She succeeds Evelyn Hess, Society 28. Vera Herr, Society 20, was renamed county treasurer. Florence Vaitl, Society 3, continues as president assisted by Judith Greenleaf, Society 15, and Corinne Nissley, Society 19, as first and second vice presidents, respectively. All of the new officers were installed by Edith Diehl, Cumberland County, president of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania.

The group sang Happy Birthday to Barbara Moore, Lititz, Society 1, who will observe her 104th birthday on November 29. Mrs. Moore has never missed any of the 71 conventions. Ida Heistand, Society 4, now living in Colorado, was honored in absentia. She became 104 in August.

Special music, featured at the morning session was presented by Bonnie Wagner, Quarryville, with vocal selections. She was accompanied at the piano by Jean Linton. Esther Stuber, Society 3, mother of Mrs. Vaitl, shared Moments of Inspiration based on the Society song, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Esther Landis, Society 14, was in charge of a memorial service honoring 20 deceased members from 15 societies.

Doris Thomas, senior Lancaster County home economist, gave a talk on her recent attendance at an extension conference at Penn State. The big change in the past 25 years, she said is in technology. The typewriter is passe. She noted that Pennsylvania is a leader in developing computer education in extension services and is looked to as an example. She noted that the day is at hand where encyclopedias will not be published but stored in a computer. Already, she said, many are storing recipes along with other household information. The computer is replacing U.S. mail and the telephone."

Thomas was presented with the "Penn State Rocker" honoring completion of 25 years of service as Lancaster County home economist.

Polk of NBC News chatted with Barbara Moore, the Lancaster Society of Farm Women's oldest member.

How To Give The Holidays Your Personal Touch

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — If you always find an excuse to make one more cookie or one more ornament for your Christmas tree, then Prescott Fire Hall was the place to be this week.

From Tuesday through Friday, 1,400 attended the "The Personal Touch" workshops sponsored by Lebanon County extension. The agenda featured holiday decorations, food garnishing, floral designing, cooking light, and creating family traditions.

Rudy and Holly Noel, reindeer creations by Sherry Kalback, have their heads formed from men's socks, their antlers from work gloves and are dressed in outgrown children's clothing.

A Victorian Christmas was the theme for Dennis Mellott's window arrangement. Floral nosegays tie back the curtains and the elegant swan spouts a colorful floral arrangement.

The audience had time to browse and examine the displays.

Entertaining and garnishing

Scott L. Aungst, owner of the Connoisseur Connection, Lebanon, taught creative uses of cheese and garnishing tips to put together taste-tempting fruit and vegetable arrangements.

Aungst, who said he was self-taught, stressed that there are no limits or special formulas to follow when arranging food. He admonished that tomato peels, squash and orange skins shouldn't be discarded but fashioned into flower shapes to add a decorative touch to hors d'oeuvres.

A sharp knife is essential to create garnishes such as cutting an orange into a basket shape or fluted bowl, scooping out the orange and filling with fruit salad. Likewise, small pumpkin shells make ideal bowls in which to serve soup. Apples can be cut in a swan shape to add a touch of elegance to food trays.

Skewers and picks provide endless opportunities to attach fruits and vegetables to each other in order to make exotic displays.

Floral Designs

Dennis Mellot, a Lebanon floral designer, delighted the audience with floral arrangements and living sculptures of whimisical animal shapes.

The sculptures are formed from wire frames outlining animal-shapes. These frames can be purchased and stuffed with spagnum moss. Add some potting soil to main body portion. Push roots of plants into body. Pack moss over it and tightly wrap with fishing line being careful not to tangle with plant. Trim moss with sissors. Pin plant runners into moss. Keep well watered. As plant grows, continue to pin stems into body until the moss is completely covered with greenery.

Mellot, who has an aversion to using the traditional red and green colors at Christmas, arranged several designs using fresh flowers in shades of yellow, red and purple.

To make a fresh centerpiece, use a large watertight saucer. Cover container and oasis with sheet moss or Spanish moss. Add accents such as stones, wood pieces, bird nests and cut flowers.

Gift baskets

"A tisket, a tasket, a holiday gift basket," is the gift for all according to Christenna Stamm, Lebanon. She displayed baskets in all shapes, sizes and colors. Some she handcrafted; others she purchased. Each she filled to meet the unique needs of persons such as a nursing home resident, a baby, a toddler's bathtub needs, a food lover and a seamtress.

To give a more custom made look, she suggests lining wicker baskets with fabric.

Stamm demonstrated turning rags into colorful baskets by wrapping rag strips around craft coiling. "Often, I purchase new fabric and tear it into one-inch strips," Stamm confessed as she admitted her husband thinks it's foolish to purchase new cloth and make it ugly.

Stamm said the fabrics should be washed to prevent colors from running. The strips are wrapped around a coil and bent to form a circle and then shaped like a basket.

Holiday cooking

Aletta Schadler, extension interim regional director, shared tips for those who find new and compelling reasons to be concerned about holiday feasting. "Light up for the holidays by cutting desserts in half and serving on smaller plates," she suggested.

She introduced the audience to new beverages on the market. She said, "Since last year, alcohol free wines can be found on grocery shelves." But for the most calorie free drinks, she suggests, a sparkling glass of fresh ice cubes filled with water.

For nutritious and lower calorie recipes, reduce salt. Only yeast breads require salt to control yeast growth; otherwise salt can be omitted from recipes.

Sugar can be reduced by one third to one half in most baking recipes. Sugar substitutes can be used in puddings, sauces, pie fillings but not in cookies and cakes since most are not heat stable and they do not help with the bulk, carmelization and texture needed.

Egg substitution can be made by substituting two egg whites for one whole egg.

Fat substitutions must be made with care since reducing it makes bread and cakes less moist. It's best to find recipes using liquid vegetable oil rather than solid shortening. Here is a nutritious cookie recipe.

Peanut Butter Cookies

¼ cup vegetable oil
¼ cup peanut butter, smooth or chunky
½ cup brown sugar, light or dark
1 egg
1¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon baking soda
No Salt Needed
¼ cup water

Mix oil, peanut butter, sugar and egg together. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill dough for 3 hours of overnight. Roll into walnut sized balls. Place on oiled baking sheet. Flatten with fork. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool before serving. This recipe has 61 calories per cookie compared to 85 in a regular cookie. It has 25 percent less sodium.

Create and celebrate

Sherry Kalbach, better known as the dryer lint lady, again entertained the audience with her hilarious suggestions for creating and celebrating. "Let's make another mess," she suggests. Things to save this year are "used tea bags." She painted them into tiny Santa Claus faces to hang on the tree.

Despite her outrageous suggestions, Kalbach includes many impressive decorations and ideas in her presentations.

This past year, Continental Press published three of her books that can be purchased. The series includes Crafty Ideas...Holiday Crafts; Gifts and Keepsakes...Holiday Take-Homes; and Party Time...Holiday Fun.

Her instructions can be found in these books, but if you ever have a chance, you'll want to hear Kalbach in person who peppers her talks with comments such as, "This is what I did, but take this as a public service announcment 'don't ever do this.'"

Make a memory

Margaret Sowers, Lebanon County home economist, encouraged the audience to stop and reflect about what's really important during the busy season. She suggests that creating family traditions strengthen family communication, values, and togetherness.

To remind the audience of the real purpose of families, Sowers wrote the following poem:

Family Traditions Under Construction

A family is a
PLACE
to cry and laugh and vent frustrations
to ask for help and tease and yell
to be touched and hugged
and smiled at.
A family is PEOPLE who care when you are sad who love you no matter what who share your triumphs who don't expect you to be perfect just growing with honesty in your own direction.
A family is a
CIRCLE
where we learn to like ourselves where we learn to make good decisions where we learn to think before we do
where we learn integrity and table manners and respect for other people where we are special where we share ideas where we listen and are listened to where we learn the rules of life to prepare ourselves for the world.
The world is a
PLACE
where anything can happen.
If we grow up in a loving family
we are ready for the world.

Dishwashers Can Save Time, Work and Water

With gift-giving season just around the corner, it's time once again to struggle with making a list of "perfect" items for each family member. If you've drawn a blank with your list, I have a suggestion: Consider installing a dishwasher in the kitchen. It's a gift that everyone will enjoy 365 days a year -- for many years to come.

And consider the benefits:

No more looking at dirty dishes stacked in the sink or overflowing your counters. The dishwasher stores a full day's collection (sometimes more) for most families, keeping kitchen counters and sink clear and tidy.

Less water is used for automatic dishwashing than with hand dishwashing. A recent study at Ohio State University showed that an automatic dishwasher used an average 9.9 gallons of water to clean a load. An identical load that was hand washed required 15.7 gallons. Not only does a dishwasher use less water, it also saves the energy required to heat the additional water needed for hand washing. Using less water and energy saves money!

And, best of all, no more family squabbles over whose turn it is to wash the dishes. Everyone scrapes and loads his or her soiled dishes. Now the family can use the time saved in not standing over a hot sink to do something fun -- together.

Does a dishwasher really save time? "Yes," reported more than 1,600 dishwasher owners who responded to a survey sponsored by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers. These dishwasher users estimated they saved an average 3.8 hours per week by using a dishwasher instead of hand washing dishes. Over a year's period, that time savings adds to more than 12 days.

Because a dishwasher saves time, work and water, it's a gift that will benefit every family member. Why not put it near the top of your "perfect" items list!

Join The Microwave Parade

More microwave ovens are purchased in November and December than any other time of the year. Husbands and wives, fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers, and sons and daughters all over the country choose the Christmas gift that truly keeps giving -- the microwave oven.

Microwave ovens have earned a place in an estimated 70 to 80 percent of American homes, and it's not uncommon to find more than one oven at work in a busy kitchen. Nevertheless, with the microwave months upon us, experienced and novice microwave oven users alike should remember some basic tips about selecting the right microwave oven.

Microwave oven buyers should carefully consider the following questions:

* Who will use the microwave oven? Recent research from the Good Housekeeping Institute indicates that in more than 90 percent of homes with a microwave oven, the appliance is used by household members other than the female household head.

* How will it be used? Planned usage can easily underestimate actual usage, as the convenience and speed of microwave cooking become apparent. Average usage is four times a day, but about one in four microwave oven users rely on the appliance six or more times each day.

* What features are needed or wanted? Only those who will use the oven can answer this, so if you're giving someone a microwave oven, involve them in the selection process. Also, many second-time buyers have more extensive "wish lists" for their second microwave, having learned from experience what they want their oven to do.

York Farm Women Convene

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — The outreach work of three York area community organizations has been boosted through the efforts of the county's Society of Farm Women.

Checks in the amount of $800 each were presented to the York Rape and Victim Assistance Center, the York Lehman Center, a crisis nursery geared toward diminishing child abuse, and the 1989 York County 4-H Fashion Revue. Presentations were made during the York County Society of Farm Women's 49th annual convention, held November 3 at Wisehaven Hall.

In her combined group report for the 34 active societies in the county, first vice-president Carolyn noted that more than $5,700 was contributed to over 50 different community organizations through the societies' fundraising efforts. Membership in the York Farm Women is nearly 600.

Trudy Reichard, Group 18 and 28, was re-elected to the office of treasurer. Continuing their second year of a two-year term in office are president Susan Lehman, Group 9; first vice-president Carolyn Rishel, Group 1; second vice-president Hazel Lighty, Group 4; and secretary Peggy Spiese, Group 18. Edith Diehl, state Farm Women president, conducted installation ceremonies for the county's officers.

Three young people were named winners at the county level of the state youth essay contest on "What The Farm Means To Me." Essays will be sent to the state competition for county winners Kathryn Lytle, Grade 2; Tanya Thoman, Grade 3; and Heather Lehman, Grade 6.

Special recognition was given to those society members who reached landmark 90-year and 80-year birthdays in 1988. Ninety-year-olds recognized were Charlotte Barton and Ivy Hoover, both of Group 1. Honored in the eighty-year-old group were Stella Barnett, Group 21; Romaine Painter and Beatrice Bacon, Group 12; Sarah Moul, Group 4; Mazie Shenberger, Group 15; Betty Spangler, Ina Craft and Dorothy Reigel, Group 1; and Rose Ehrhart and Devaltus Fillmore, Group 2.

Eleven members who died in the past twelve months were memorialized in a ceremony of music and readings. Remembered in that ceremony were Nora Baylor, Mabel Mead & Elsie Zeigler, Group 1; Grace Karns, Group 2; Mildred Rhodes, Group 3; Annie Brenneman, Group 4; Angie Fadely, Group 6; Ada M. Luckenbaugh, Group 11; Helen Meckley Myers, Group 13; Evelyn Fuhrman, Group 19; and Alice Stewart, Group 21.

Featured speaker for the convention's afternoon session was Thomas L. Schaefer, area representative for continuing education, Penn State York. A Gettysburg battle historian and part-time guide, Schaefer traces his interest in the historic battle to his great, great grandfather, a member of the 110th Pennsylvania Infantry which fought there. His presentation outlined ten key factors which influenced the outcome of the bloody, three-day battle which marked the beginning of the final downfall of the Confederacy.

York County Society of Farm Women presented $800 checks to three community organizations during their 49th annual convention. Accepting their checks from county president Susan Lehman (right) are: (from right) Berdella Hershey, representing the 4-H Fashion Revue; Karen Hook, York Rape and Victim Assistance Center; and Theresa Eshbach, Lehman Center of Children's Assistance.

Lancaster County 4-H Leader Honored For 35 Years Of Service

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ (Lancaster) — Milton Brubaker, a former dairyman, doesn't consider himself a leader exactly. He sees himself more as a guide for 4-H'ers, helping the young people to learn about animals and untangibles such as responsibility, sportsmanship, and leadership.

Brubaker has been guiding 4-H members for 35 years now, and it's an activity that gives him a lot of satisfaction. "What I like best is the fact that you get young folks in there and some are pretty shy, some you have to nudge, but you get to see them grow and watch them develop," he explained. "By the time they're 14 or 15, you can see what they've been able to accomplish for themselves. They have confidence in themselves that they can do a job, lead a meeting, and write a secretary's or newspaper report."

Brubaker's involvement with 4-H began in 1927 when his mother organized the county's first club, the Lititz 4-H Garden Club. He was a member only two years when he had to leave the club because he exceeded the age limit.

It wasn't until 1953 that Brubaker renewed his involvement with 4-H, this time as a parent. His eldest son, Jimmy, joined the Ayrshire dairy club. "I was interested and volunteered to do things," remembered Brubaker. "Then I was asked to be a leader since I was doing the work any way."

Brubaker's other children, Carol and Paul, also became 4-H'ers. Brubaker remembers that the Ayrshire club, as well as the other dairy clubs, were very active. "We all worked together. When Atlantic Breeders had a dairy show stressing 4-H, we had a food stand. Everybody did the work and we divided the money between the clubs."

In the 1950s and '60s, nearly 200 children were members of the Holstein, Guernsey and Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, and Jersey Clubs. Membership declined in the '70s due to many reasons including the expense of trucking, reduction in the number of area farms, and the expense of testing. In time the dairy clubs combined to form one club.

As a leader, Brubaker helps to organize the club, get new members, help members find projects if necessary, and helps develop programs. In addition "I teach the kids how to set up a project and show the officers how to perform the duties of their office," he said.

Brubaker farmed for 50 years, milking Ayrshires on a farm that had been in the family for several generations.

One of Brubaker's fondest memories as a 4-H leader occurred during Farm Show one year. His family had taken two animals up to show in the open and youth competitions. One owned by his son, the other belonged to his nephew. "We dropped off the animals and boys during the weekend and I told the boys to take care of the animals and that I'd see them on Monday morning," Brubaker related. "Well, that Sunday it snowed really bad, and I couldn't get there. So I called the boys up and told them to do the best they could. They came home with three blue ribbons.

"The two boys learned enough through 4-H that at that young age (13 and 15 years of age) they were able to take over and do outstanding."

Milton Brubaker of Lititz was recently honored by Lancaster County 4-H'ers for his 35 years of being a 4-H leader.

Parents and Teens Together Program

CREAMERY (Montgomery) — A unique educational program designed to encourage family communication about sexuality and its impact on adolescent development will be offered for parents and teens, on four Monday evenings, November 21, 28, December 5 and 12, at the Montgomery County 4-H Center near Skippack, from 7 to 9 p.m. Some of the sessions will bring parents and teens together to discuss topics; others will involve just parents or just teens. Any adult who has a significant relationship with a teen is welcome. Teen participants should be between the ages of 11 and 14. The cost is $10 per family, for the series.

Featured speakers/facilities include Susan Broida, Educator/Trainer for Planned Parenthood Southeastern Pennsylvania and Donna Derr, PhD., Family Education Coordinator, Family Services of Montgomery County.

The following national statistics prompted Montgomery County 4-H to offer this unique program:

* 40% of our nation's young women become pregnant during their teens.
* 70% of teen-age mothers become pregnant again within two years of the birth of their first child.
* 61% of all high school seniors have used drugs.
* 30% of all high school seniors get drunk once a week.
* Teen suicide was the second leading cause of death among white 15-24 year olds in 1983.
* Our infant mortality rate is the highest of 22 industrialized nations.

Farm Women Not Shy About Voicing Viewpoints

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — Some farmers would give a hog, steer or an acre of corn for a chance to discuss matters face to face with the heads of a major ag equipment company. However, the only requirement for 15 farm women who visited Ford New Holland executives recently were three days of their time... and their frankness.

And they were far from shy about expressing it.

"It was great," said Richard Kinder, Ford New Holland's manager of communications and sales promotions. "We wanted strong opinions, and that's exactly what we got. Many of these women came right during the heart of harvest when they were needed on the farm, and that tells us how important they feel the women's perspective is."

It was this unique perspective and the overall role of women in farming that prompted Ford Tractor Operations (which later became Ford New Holland) to form the Agricultural Women's Council in 1983, the only group of its kind among ag equipment companies.

The 1988 council membership involved 15 women from across North America selected to visit New Holland, the company's world headquarters, this past October. Discussions with company executives ranged from dealer service and parts to advertising and promotion. Council members were also given the opportunity to evaluate various equipment against comparable competitive equipment.

"The input of these women is significant," Kinder said. "They give us information and feedback that is often incorporated into our product, marketing and dealer training programs."

The council included women from Iowa, Illinois, Colorado, Alabama, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington, and Nevada, as well as Ontario, Canada.

Some are dairy farmers; others are involved with grain, livestock, or some combination of those enterprises. One grows spices. Several women work off the farm in addition to their on-farm chores.

"The diversity of this Council is vital to its success," Kinder said. "What's important in Colorado may not be important in Wisconsin or Pennsylvania and vice versa."

Kinder reported that several of the women's comments from this year's Council have already elicited movement within the company to change existing product features, "...although I don't want to say what those are until we get them implemented!" he said. Past feedback has led to a redesigned tractor seat and improved cab ergonomics.

The Council members represented all types of farm equipment ownership and dealer affiliation. The women were especially vocal about parts issues, from the service they receive to parts availability at the dealership.

Typical was this reaction, from Linda Griffith, Ridgefield, Washington: "I realize that equipment dealers are having the same financial problems that farmers are having... however, I don't feel any sympathy for them when I need something and they don't have it!"

Fifteen women from across North America met at Ford New Holland's world headquarters here to be part of the 1988 Agricultural Women's Council.

Do You Know

Nearly 77 million U.S. Citizens are between 25 and 44 years of age. They take more short cuts, spend less time in preparing meals, share more domestic responsibilities, use more convenience and microwaved foods, and consume more foods prepared out of the home. Working women cook less and men cook more. Nearly two-thirds of men and women enjoy cooking, especially contemporary meals. Only 70 percent of the household members eat evening dinners together three or four days weekly. About half eat breakfast apart but only 20 percent eat together on weekends.

A 1987 research survey confirmed that the average household family spends $35 weekly on food prepared out of the home, and that nearly 15% of the total food dollars is spent on take-out foods.

This information comes from a recent study funded by the Food Marketing Institute and Better Homes and Gardens.

AAW Meets Next Week

PHILADELPHIA — A touch of Pennsylvania flair will greet those attending the 14th annual convention of the American Agri-Women (AAW), Nov. 16-20, at the Holiday Inn-Center City, Philadelphia.

Convention-goers will get their first taste of Pennsylvania on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at a 6 p.m. reception featuring state-grown foods. AAW president Mitzi Purdue will preside over the event, which is being hosted by the Philadelphia-based Farm Journal magazine.

On Thursday morning at 8 a.m., AAW members and guests will wake up to a "Make Your Own Omelet Breakfast," featuring the Omelet King himself, Howard Helmer. Up until two weeks ago, Helmer was the Guinness Book of World Record's fastest omelet maker, cooking 217 of the egg specialties in 30 minutes.

Helmer's appearance is being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, which represents 250 egg producers. Poultry is ranked No. 2 among the state's agricultural industries.

At 10 a.m., "Ben Franklin," portrayed by Ralph Archbold, will deliver the keynote address on "The Challenge of Change." Archbold, considered one of the best "Franklin" impersonators, will tailor his remarks to Franklin's agricultural interests, as well as making the most of change.

The Pennsylvania flair will continue Thursday night with carriage rides through historic Philadelphia. Featured sites will include Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, Carpenter's Court, Society Hill and Penn's Landing. The tour is sponsored by ICI Americas, Hamilton Bank and Keystone Fruit Sales.

A "must" for visitors to the "City of Brotherly Love" is to sample an original Philadelphia cheese steak sandwich. AAW members will get their chance during a luncheon on Friday, featuring the famous sandwich. The guest speaker will be Mary Jo Keating, the Du Pont Company, on "Global Issues."

Hosted by the Penn's Agri-Women, the convention will bring together agricultural leaders from across the country. For more information and a schedule of events, contact Gail McPherson, Box 127, New Park, Pa. 17352; phone number, (717) 382-4878.

The American Agri-Women is a national organization representing 35 state and commodity affiliate chapters. Its goal is to promote agriculture among urban consumers, politicians, media and church leadership.

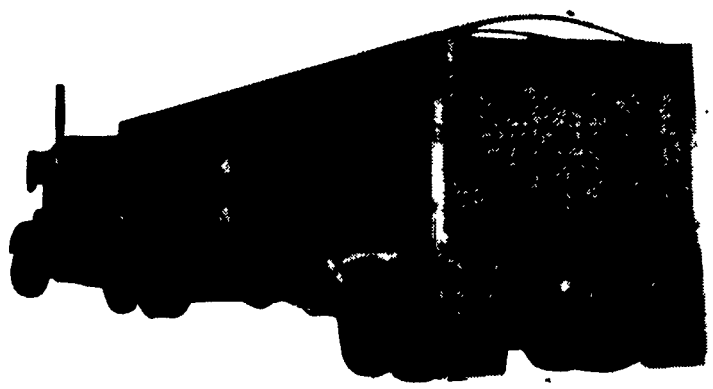
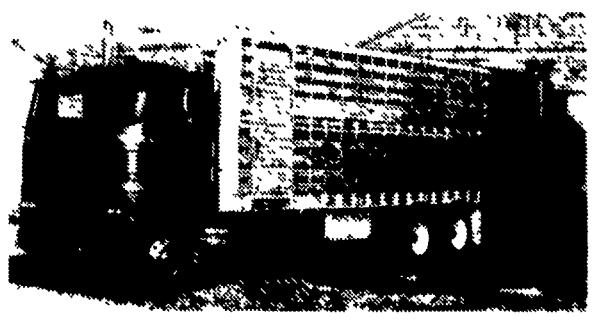
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER



Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

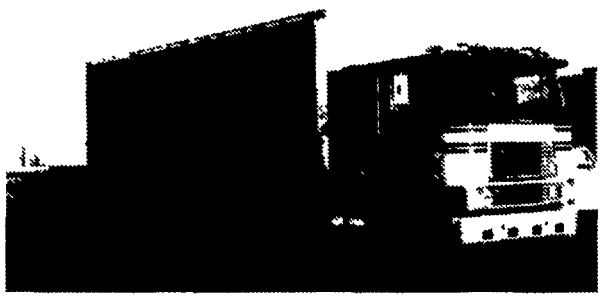
M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971

An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul.

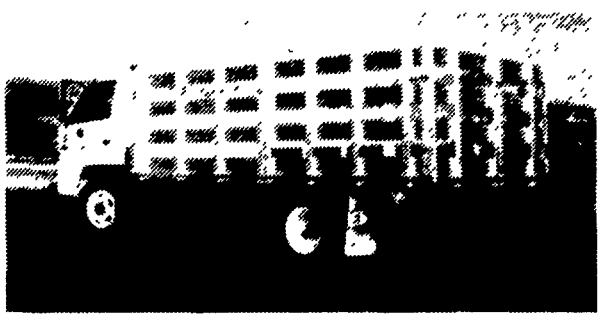


Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.

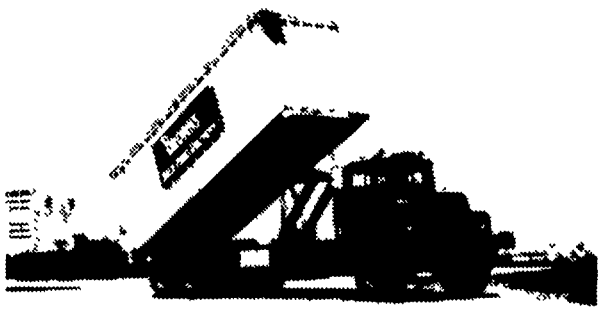
Eby's bolt-on extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment.



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected.



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.



Consider an Eby bulk body for reliability and ease of use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

A Fairly Good Year

As we started in the hot dry summer this year, who would have thought we'd have as good a harvest as we've been having this year? We have a lot to be thankful for.

Hay yields were quite good, and there is a lot of excellent quality hay and haylage in storage. Corn grain yields were also quite good, but silage yields were off. Thus, more acres had to be ensiled and less were available for harvesting as grain. Consequently, high moisture corn silos and corn cribs are more empty than usual. However, this year's corn silage is running higher in energy and lower in fiber due to a higher ratio of ears to stalk.

As a result of this year's growing season, our feeds are of different quality. That means feeds should be analyzed, and rations should be adjusted accordingly. Since corn grain (energy) will be short on many farms, it would be wise to make the best use of the added energy in your forages, while also making sure you do not shortchange the cows on fiber. This could be the year to feed more forages, especially if they are abundant, and the price is right.

If you are short on grain, you will need to think about buying additional energy. However, don't feel compelled to pay high prices for corn just to fill the silo. There may be other cheaper alternatives. This may be the year to rely more heavily on dry corn, short feeds, by-products and other alternative feeds, depending on the market, and that will probably vary from month to month.

Nationwide, grain yields appear to be considerably better than anticipated, and we had a considerable carryover of grain from last year. The Soviets may be in the market for more grain and the Brazilians expect a good bean harvest. So, watch the market closely; prices of some grains may soften as more harvest and export information becomes available and as we move away from periods of panic buying; other prices may remain strong.

Computing The Value Of Feeds

The table below compares the value of a variety of feedstuffs. These values will change depending upon the cost of protein and energy, which is determined by the price of soybean oil meal and shelled corn. Let's assume that 48% soybean meal is $290 per ton, corn is $3.35 a bushel and grinding charges are $7.50 per ton.

To calculate the value of feedstuffs, follow these six simple steps:

1. Calculate the price of 44% soybean oil meal per 100 lbs. $13.18. (Do this by dividing the price of 1 ton of 48% meal by 22.)
2. Calculate the price of whole shelled corn per 100 lbs. $6.03 (Do this by multiplying the bu. price by 1.8.)
3. Calculate the price of ground shelled corn per 100 lbs. $6.41. (Do this by adding the grinding cost per 100 lbs. to the answer in step 2.)
4. Calculate the energy value of feeds in column 7 of the table by multiplying the price of ground shelled corn in step 3 by the shelled corn factor in column 5. For feeds that have to be ground, use the cheaper whole shelled corn price in step 2 rather than the ground shelled corn price.
5. Calculate the protein value of feeds in column 8 of the table by multiplying the soybean oil meal price in step 1 by the soybean oil meal factor in column 6.
6. To arrive at the value of a feedstuff in column 9, simply add the values in columns 7 and 8.

*These feeds should be ground; use whole shelled corn prices (step 2) for their calculations.

The feed values in column 9 of the table represent the approximate maximum amount you can afford to pay for a feedstuff. These values should be adjusted to reflect differences in moisture, quality, convenience, etc. If the market price is less than those computed feed values, the feed could possibly be a good buy.

If you substitute one feedstuff for another, make changes gradually. Be sure to balance the ration property and know the effect of the feedstuff on cattle. Pay attention to soluble protein, by-pass protein, starch loads, neutral detergent fiber, etc. You want to meet the cows' nutrient needs while also being sure to maintain good rumen function and dry matter intakes. Unless you know what you are doing, it is advisable to work closely with your feed consultant.

When buying and selling feeds, adjust prices for variations in moisture content. For example, if dry shelled corn is selling for $3.35 per bushel, how much is one ton of 30% high moisture shelled corn worth? First, convert the bushels prices to a ton price by multiplying the $3.35 bu. price by 35.7 bu. per ton (2000 lbs. per ton + 56 lbs. per bu. = 35.7 bu. per ton). The answer is $120. But, this is for shelled corn containing 15.5% moisture (84.5% dry matter). The high moisture corn contains only 70% dry matter and is worth proportionately less — only $99. To adjust the price, use this formula:

$$\frac{\text{dry matter of feed to be purchased}}{\text{dry matter of the feed priced}} \times \text{price} = \frac{70}{84.5} \times $120 = $99$$

There has been a lot of publicity about aflatoxins in feeds. In many areas, the problem is not as severe as the publicity may lead you to think, but for farmers who experience the problem, it can be severe. You may want to be alert for this problem when buying feeds. Most feed companies are already on guard. Feeds can be screened for aflatoxins with a black light. There is an additive that can be added to feeds to "tie up" aflatoxins and prevent their absorption by animals. Or, suspect feeds can be diluted with good feeds to reduce the problem.

Profits this year could hinge greatly on making the best use of the feeds you have, using alternative feeds to supplement your supply, avoiding unnecessary and expensive frills, watching the feed market closely, managing your feed supplies in a manner that will enable you to take advantage of good feed buys, working closely with your feeding consultant and paying attention to details. Don't miss the opportunities.

Farm Plan Expands Credit Service To Pennsylvania, New York

FREDERICK, MD. — Rural businesses and their customers in Pennsylvania and New York now have a new credit service available through Farm Plan.

Currently available in 48 states, Farm Plan Corporation provides a revolving credit service to the rural marketplace.

With the Farm Plan credit service, customers can purchase supplies, parts and services on credit from local merchants. Purchases are compiled on a monthly statement, and payments can be extended for several months at the customer's discretion. In some ways, Farm Plan operates like consumer credit cards.

However, Farm Plan differs from the more common consumer credit cards in that it is a "stationary" card system. Upon approval of application, each patron of a Farm Plan merchant is issued a Farm Plan card at each participating business patronized.

Because the card is "stationary", this system allows for fast, convenient service at local participating merchants for the customer as well as approved family members and employees.

Payment for purchases is simplified with Farm Plan. All charges for the month -- whether at one merchant or several -- are combined into a single statement issued by Farm Plan. One check can pay for all the customer's charges. Customers have the option of paying their new balance in full each month, interest free, or they may extend payment over several months according to a prearranged schedule.

Also, this combined statement simplifies record-keeping for tax purposes since all purchases are documented together.

Farm Plan also offers significant advantages to merchants. Through Farm Plan, merchants enjoy reduced credit risk and billing expense. Farm Plan manages the billing process to reduce bookkeeping time merchants spend on invoicing. Most important, Farm Plan improves cash flow and eases the credit load by assuming the merchant's accounts receivable which often reach significant levels.

Ron Carne, president of Farm Plan Corporation says this is a serious problem. "With as much as seven percent of total assets tied up in accounts receivable, a merchant's cash flow is reduced drastically — limiting purchase of new inventory or causing a merchant to borrow money to replenish inventory."

"Farm Plan bridges the accounts receivable gap so customers can continue buying items at local merchants on credit while merchants are relieved of heavy credit burdens," Carne said.

Farm Plan began in 1974 as a way to help Wisconsin implement dealers ease a large customer credit burden. It has since expanded to serve more than one-half million customers and 1,900 agribusinesses in the contiguous 48 states. The most common types of agribusinesses that offer Farm Plan credit to customers include: building material, bulk fuel, cooperative, feed mill, implement and veterinary.

In 1984, Farm Plan, controlled by Association Credit Plans, Inc., the Wisconsin Farm Equipment Association and United Bank of Madison, Wisconsin, was acquired by Decre & Company to form Farm Plan Corporation, an independent financial subsidiary.

Varity Raises Earnings In Second Quarter

TORONTO — Net income of Varity Corporation in the second quarter advanced to $18.3 million, or seven cents per common share outstanding. In contrast, the company posted a loss of $3.8 million or four cents per share in the year-earlier period on fewer common shares outstanding.

The company attributed its higher earnings to rising sales, improved margins, and gains in productivity. Sales in the three months ended July 31, 1988, reached $582 million, a seven-year high for a single quarter and 26 percent ahead of the same period a year ago when sales were $462 million.

In the six months ended July 31, 1988, Varity recorded net earnings of $33.5 million, or 13 cents per common share outstanding; sales at $1,137 million were 24 percent ahead of the year-earlier level. At mid-year 1987, the company had lost $17.6 million, or 14 cents per common share, on sales of $915 million.

Gross margins in the latest half-year improved by more than two percentage points over the comparable 1987 period. Marketing and administrative costs declined as a share of revenues. Miscellaneous income resulting from sales of surplus assets, a major element in 1987 earnings, also declined; this reduction in income was offset by lower charges for reorganization and investment expenses. Positive cash flow from operations was $30 million.

Tax provisions of $8 million in the recent quarter and $14 million for the six months were offset by tax credits, which are carried as extraordinary items and reflect utilization of prior years' tax losses. The company has significant tax loss carry-forwards available.

Victor Rice, chairman and chief executive officer, said such of Varity's three major operating groups contributed to the gains in sales and profitability, with each achieving or exceeding sales and earnings targets.

In the Equipment Group, Massey-Ferguson tractors and farm machinery and MF Industrial machinery boosted sales 35 percent in the recent quarter and 27 percent in the six months over the same periods last year. Rice said Massey-Ferguson's sales momentum, along with improved operating efficiencies, led to a substantial improvement in operating earnings in the latest quarter over the year's opening period.

In the Components Group, Perkins Engines elevated sales 22 percent in the quarter and 27 percent in the first half. Rice said demand for Perkins' products improved in the agricultural, construction and industrial machinery sectors.

In the North American Enterprises Group, Dayton Walther raised sales 6 percent in the recent quarter and 16 percent in the first half, reflecting healthy conditions in the truck and trailer industries. A new operating business, which supplies products for automotive and machinery aftermarkets, recorded sales of almost $20 million in its first three months of operations.

Rice noted that Varity now has posted net earnings for four consecutive quarters.

He said the company was encouraged by its latest financial performance. "Our operations have made much progress," he observed, "but we remain mindful that we are engaged in highly competitive businesses. This environment imposes unrelenting pressure to squeeze costs and improve margins. Our people have responded to the challenge with impressive gains in productivity, yet we never expect to reach a point where we can safely sit back, point with pride, and declare the job completed. Our strategic imperatives contain no provision for standing still."

GEHL

The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spread liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control.

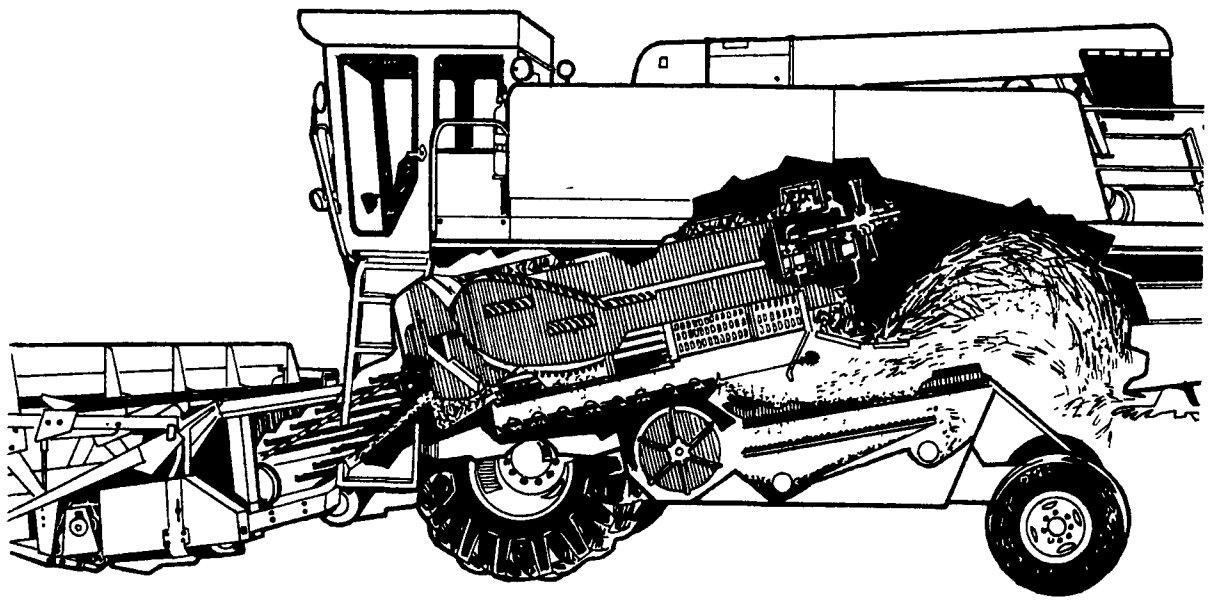
The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For eleven years Hoober's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

Salers Debut At Eastern National Livestock Show

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — For the first time in the 41 year history of the Eastern National Livestock show, Saler beef cattle were shown at the event, which was held last month at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium.

Seven Saler (pronounced Sahlaire) breeders from Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and West Virginia, brought 22 head of the dark red breed to their first exhibition show at the E.N.L.S. and were very pleased with the facility and the reception they received, according to several breeders and breed representatives. Salers were imported into the North American continent in 1972 from France and are reputed to be one of the oldest breeds of cattle known to man.

"The Eastern National was pleased to host the Saler breed and look forward to establishing this as a regular show here," said Show General Manager, Andy Cashman.

Each year the Eastern National Livestock Show attracts livestock exhibitors from across the country and Canada. This year 350 exhibitors brought 918 head of livestock including 416 beef cattle and 278 sheep from 16 states to participate. In addition 8 teams participated in the Junior Stockman judging contest and 9 teams competed in the Beef Fitout Contest. Fourteen collegiate judging teams from across the country and 12 4-H/FFA judging teams competed in the judging contests.

During the five day event 1,675 Baltimore Co. school children visited the exhibits and the E.N.L.S. Kiddie Barn as part of an educational grant program.

The show has always been a favorite of stockmen, according to Knic Overpeck of Clinton, Indiana, who judged the steer show and two beef breeds this year and has been a regular exhibitor at Eastern National for many years.

Overpeck commented, as did several other exhibitors, that the facility at the Maryland State Fairgrounds is one of the best in the country.

National Pork Board Plans For the Future

DES MOINES, IA. — Since pork producers voted in September to continue the checkoff indefinitely, the National Pork Board has set up a structure to ensure stability and continuity of programs and services. The National Pork Board, which is made up of 14 pork producers and one importer, is responsible for the collection, allocation and accountability of checkoff dollars collected under the 100% Pork Checkoff.

"The pork industry generates approximately $10 billion of sales at the farm gate for producers and their families. With that much money in annual sales, and even greater investments in land and equipment, producers are entitled to a long-range plan for their checkoff investment," said Virgil Rosendale, president of the National Pork Board. "It would be unwise for the Board not to be concerned about on-going plans and programs for the future."

At its October meeting, the National Pork Board entered into an agreement with the National Pork Producers Council to promote continuity and unity within the industry while avoiding duplication of efforts. As a part of the agreement, the Board committed no less than 30 percent of the annual budget for the next five years to NPPC for the development of base programs as directed by producers. The agreement becomes effective January 1, 1989.

Rosendale, a pork producer from Augusta, Ill., said, "As a producer-controlled organization, NPPC has a consistent record of effectively and efficiently carrying out programs for the good of producers. This agreement will establish stability and continuity for the primary service organization for the board."

NPPC President Ray Hankes said he is confident this agreement will increase the effectiveness of the checkoff program by insuring that effective programs and services will continue to be carried out. "We're now able to make plans for more than one year down the road, like any responsible business should," Hankes said.

In other action, the Board established a $300,000 reserve fund for operation needs. A second reserve fund, that will fluctuate from a zero balance to $4 million, is designed to even out fluctuating annual checkoff revenues. A $2.6-million surplus from 1987 was used to establish this contigency-type reserve.

"These reserve funds will make it possible to handle unexpected situations that require immediate attention, and ensure that checkoff-funded programs will not be adversely affected because of fluctuating annual checkoff revenue," said Rosendale.

The show's middleweight champion, a 117-pound Hampshire, was exhibited by Steve Hilsher, 12, of Elizabethtown.

The purple rosettes for the champion bred-and-owned and supreme champion ewe of the breeding show went to Mark Tracy, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tracy of Elizabethtown.

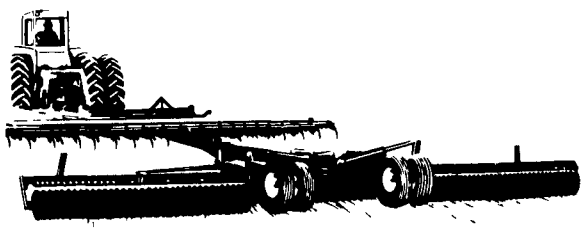
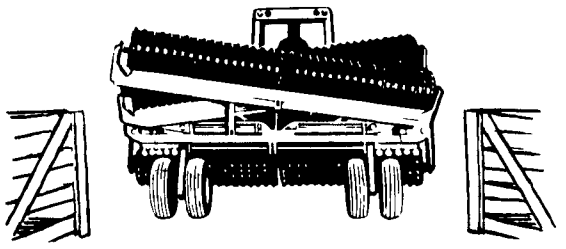
BRILLION X-FOLD PULVERIZERS



WIDE IN THE FIELD



COMPACT IN TRANSPORT

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 36'. A single tractor hydraulic system raises the machine and folds the wings. With its X-Fold configuration, the transport height is reduced to less than eight feet, well below low hanging utility wires or tree branches. The low profile provides safe, stable road travel.

Transport widths are 10'1" or 13'4", depending on model. An automatic transport lock secures the pulverizer for travel, releases when in working position — all with tractor seat control. And Brillion provides a choice of four styles of roller wheels — 18" smooth (with or without sprockets), 20" crowfoot or 20" notched rollers.

With the X-Folds you not only cover more acreage, but you also break up hard clods, firm the soil — free of air pockets and push down small stones... and you get Brillion quality for years of durability and performance.

Hamilton Equipment Holds Open House

RAPHINE, VA — Hamilton Equipment Inc. hosted an open house at their Raphine, Virginia warehouse on September 16 and 17. This celebration marked 50 years of wholesale distribution.

Dealers from six surrounding states were invited to tour Hamilton Equipment's warehouse and discuss product features with representatives from fourteen factories.

Door prizes were awarded to dealers attending the event.

The new Case IH Model 8610 bale processor makes it convenient and efficient for one person to process large round bales. The bale processor shreds bales up to 6½ feet in diameter into palatable lengths to fit almost any type of livestock feeding operation.

Case IH Introduces Bale Processor

RACINE, Wisc. — Convenient and efficient one-man processing of large round bales now is available with the Case IH Model 8610 bale processor. This new product complements the complete Casse IH line of round balers.

The Model 8610 bale processor handles all types of crops, in bales up to six-and-one-half feet in diameter. It shreds material into palatable lengths to fit almost any type of livestock feeding operation.

From the tractor seat, the operator can tilt the tub 90 degrees to pick up a bale. The opening in the tub floor provides visibility for loading bales. Once the bale is engaged, the operator simply raises the tub hydraulically to an upright position.

Once upright, the rotating tub utilizes the bale's own weight to force the crop down onto the 40-inch long by 24-inch diameter rotor, which contains 14 fixed, reversible shredding knives. Feeding is thorough and uniform without fighting the bale's weight as with some other processors. The tub measures 87 inches in diameter and 49 inches high.

Actual field operations show that it is possible for one person to feed bales with the Model 8610 processor at the rate of four to six minutes per bale. Depending upon the crop and conditions, an operator can process eight to ten bales an hour.

Low horsepower requirements make this bale processor well-suited to nearly any size of operation. Case IH recommends running the bale processor with tractors from 50 to 150 PTO horsepower with a 1,000 rpm PTO.

The Model 8610 is available with a discharge chute for feeding on the open range or into bunks up to 36 inches high. The processor will blow straw as far as 15 feet for livestock bedding.

Other processor options include: a fixed conveyor for filling bunks up to 32 inches high (recommended for bunk feeding); a movable conveyor for feeding into bunks up to 60 inches high; a secondary cutting element for a finer cut; a heavy bale kit for processing bales more than 1,500 lbs. or for tractors with hydraulic pressure below 2,000 psi; and 12.5L-15 6-ply traction tread flotation tires for wet conditions.

The Model 8610 complements the line of eight Case IH round balers that includes four fixed chamber balers and four models of variable chamber balers.

The 276 Bidirectional tractor from Ford New Holland now comes in a blue color, which is used on all the company's agricultural tractors. The 276 has a 4.4-liter FOrd diesel engine and a quick-response three-range all-hydrostatic drive. The operator seat and console rotate to face either the cab or engine end of the power unit.

Ford New Holland Colors Versatile Tractors Blue

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — Ford New Holland has unveiled a new blue color scheme for its four-wheel-drive Versatile tractors, providing a family appearance throughout the entire agricultural tractor line.

According to Gorham A. Cowl, executive vice president for marketing and sales, the common tractor color will help advance the recognition of Ford New Holland worldwide.

"We have a happy dilemma," Cowl said. "We have three outstanding brand names in Ford, New Holland and Versatile. They're known for quality, dependability and performance. However, while Ford is well-known worldwide, Versatile's recognition is rather limited, and we want to expand that awareness. Dressing all our tractors in this well-recognized Ford blue is a big step in that direction." The tractors carry the Ford brand with the Versatile logo appearing next to the model number.

Cowl also noted research showed a strong synergistic effect from bringing the Ford, New Holland and Versatile brands together. "We think the family appearance of our tractors will enhance the positive reaction that dealers, farmers and ranchers already have expressed about Ford New Holland," Cowl said.

As to possible changes in the New Holland line's red and yellow colors, Cowl said that was being evaluated carefully, too. "But tractors are sort of a farm equipment company's flag bearers, and since Ford engines are now going into these tractors, we felt it was important to make this change and make it now."

The new tractor color scheme was unveiled at a week-long event at the firm's headquarters in New Holland, Pennsylvania. The "Fallfest" program featured a display of about 50 pieces of Ford New Holland agricultural, industrial and lawn and garden equipment which was visited by North American and overseas agricultural jurnalists; local business, education and government representatives; and employees and their families.

Also visiting during Fallfest was the 1988 Ford New Holland Agricultural Women's Advisory Council. This panel of 15 farm and ranch women is convened by the firm's North American sales group to discuss areas of mutual interest and to help company personnel maintain a strong awareness of the key roles women have in today's agriculture.

National FFA Convention Under Way

KANSAS CITY, MO — More than 22,000 FFA'ers, advisors, supporters, and guests representing 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands attended the 61st National FFA Convention, which began earlier this week and finishes today.

The convention featured eight action-packed sessions with addresses by top speakers from the fields of agriculture, government, and entertainment. Among those who appeared are former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz; educator and agricultural futurist Lowell Catlett; motivational speaker Denis Waitley; Dr. Bonnie Guiton, assistant secretary, U.S. Department of Education; Miss America, Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson; and country entertainer Jerry Clower.

In addition, convention participants attended leadership workshops, tour Kansas City manufacturing and agribusiness sites, and saw the American Royal Livestock Show performances.

Other highlights included the selection of top FFA members in 29 agricultural proficiency award areas, 10 national career skill competitions, and both prepared and extemporaneous public speaking contests. At the Friday afternoon session, the American Farmer degrees were presented to 713 FFA'ers.

Lancaster Farming salutes the FFA'ers who received awards as well as the competitors who have already achieved significant honors in state contests. Below is a list of the FFA'ers in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia who received the American Farmer degree and competed for proficiency awards.

SIMPLE ECONOMY.

The Kubota L2050 compact diesel tractor was designed to combine versatility with operating economy, pure and simple.

With eight forward speeds, the Kubota L2050's powerful, four-cycle 20PTO HP diesel engine delivers ample power for most farming tasks. Direct fuel injection increases fuel economy.

High torque rise allows the Kubota L2050 to recover from sudden load increases that will stall most conventional engines.

Versatility is guaranteed by optional quick attach implements like a front loader, box scraper, mid-mount mower and tiller.

Put the Kubota L2050 to work. It's simply economical.

KUBOTA
Nothing like it on earth.™

THE QUICK REVERSE.

You might say the L3750 is quick on its tires With eight forward and eight reverse speeds plus your choice of a mechanical or hydraulic shuttle-shift, all kinds of front loader jobs go quick

The L3750 is even a smooth mover under the hood A new 5-cylinder diesel engine improves performance over a smaller engine, without the fuel consumption of a bigger engine

Other features that help make the work go quickly include a cleanly designed operator platform with the gearshift controls within easy reach at your fingertips Not underfoot

So see the 36 PTO horsepower Kubota L3750 soon Or make that quick.

KUBOTA
Nothing like it on earth.™

DIRECT INJECTION DIESEL.

Kubota has a compact tractor with direct fuel injection. The L2250 has a 3-cylinder engine with 21 PTO horsepower. Plus it has direct injection for improved starts in cold weather and better fuel economy, too.

Other standard features, not so standard on most tractors of this size, include rear- and mid-mount PTO for maximum versatility when it comes to attaching implements. Surprising, wet disc brakes are standard, too. Power steering is standard on the deluxe model.

Our operator platform is designed for increased comfort, with all the important controls at your fingertips. Not underfoot.

To find out more about the Kubota L2250, please direct your questions to us.

KUBOTA
Nothing like it on earth.™

WORK A SHORT SHIFT.

The Kubota L4150 makes short work out of shifting from forward to reverse. And that makes loading, leveling, grading or any other kind of work on a construction site go faster, too.

It comes with an 8 × 8 partially synchronized manual transmission. Or choose an optional hydraulic shuttle shift for quick reverse capability. You never have to touch the clutch.

There are also eight forward and eight reverse speeds. So it's easy to select the best speed for any job.

So come see the Kubota L4150. It could help shorten your workday

Youth Urged To Vie For Scholarships

LANCASTER — "Ten of America's future agricultural leaders will get a hand with their educational pursuits, thanks to a scholarship program sponsored by Hastings Manufacturing Co.," said Harold S. Stauffer general manager, of John E. Landis Co. which sells Hastings products.

"I'm pleased to be able to offer everyone the opportunity to win these scholarships," said Stauffer. "This agricultural scholarship program underscores Hastings' commitment to America's farmers and ranchers and I'm glad to be a part of it."

Anyone planning a career in agriculture or agricultural-related fields is eligible to enter the sweepstakes for one of 10 awards of $1,500 each.

Entry forms may obtained now from John E. Landis Co. and other participating auto parts stores and auto service centers that sell Hastings filters. Entries will be available through Dec. 31, 1988. The random drawing for the 10 scholarships will be Jan. 23, 1989.

No purchase is necessary to enter the sweepstakes. No tests or essays are required. Only official entry blanks will be considered. Complete rules are available in stores offering entry blanks.

Established in 1915, Hastings Manufacturing Co. is one of the nation's leading producers and marketers of quality farm and ranch equipment filters.

Recent questions on hard seeds in legumes has prompted me to do a column on the subject. Frankly, the whole matter of hard seeds is complex. Hopefully, however, the following may help all of us to better understand what hard seeds are, and their role in agriculture.

Seeds that do not absorb water when placed in wet or moist surroundings, because of an impermeable seed coat, are referred to as hard seeds. In field crop seeds, the largest number of hard seeds are found in small seeded legumes such as alfalfa, red clover, birdsfoot trefoil, and crownvetch. Hard seeds in general are viable or live seeds, and normally over time, do germinate. However, because they do not take up water immediately when exposed to moisture, they are considered dormant or hard.

What Causes Hard Seeds?

Technically, "hardseededness" is credited to an impermeable layer either on or just under the surface of the seed, and while hardseededness is a generally characteristic of most small seeded legumes, there are differences among species and among varieties within species. Among the clovers, for example, ranked from high to low, species differ in their degree of resistance to becoming permeable as follows: white, ladino, alsike, red, crimson. Thus, hard seeds of red clover would become permeable and germinate sooner than hard seeds of white, ladino, or alsike. And, while specific data are not available, I would expect hard seeds of red clover to also germinate sooner than those of alfalfa.

Speaking of alfalfa, we know that some varieties regularly develop more hard seeds than other varieties. On the other hand, the same variety grown in different fields may show wide differences in hard-seed content.

Environmental conditions under which the seed is grown are a major factor determining the percentage of hard seeds and the degree of hardseededness, with temperature during and immediately following maturity playing a major role. For example, hard seed percentages of 40 to 50 percent are common in alfalfa seed lots grown in Washington and other northwestern states, while alfalfa seed lots of the same variety grown in California seldom have more than a 20 to 30 percent hard-seed content. The impermeable layer is formed late in the seed development process. Thus, if growth is stopped abruptly, the impermeable layer may have limited time to develop fully. Likewise, drying of the seed, both in the field and in storage, seems to play an important part in the development of hardseededness.

The temperature and humidity of seed storage facilities also have a pronounced effect on hardseededness. High relative humidity during seed storage reduces, and in some legumes, prevents formation of hardseededness that occurs in storage at low humidity.

How Is Hardseededness Reduced?

In the past, as much as 20 to 30 percent hard seed in legumes was thought to be advantageous in the event of poor or unfavorable weather conditions following planting, and this level is still considered okay under some conditions.

However, with alfalfa, at least most seedsmen prefer no more than 10 percent hard seed. Recent studies do indicate that with alfalfa late germinating seeds cannot compete well with established seedlings and new plants make only a minor contribution to improving stands. This would not be as true with red clover. Regardless, many authorities still feel that for most legume species, hard seeds can be, and are, very beneficial for filling in where old plants disappear.

The three most frequently used commercial methods to lower hardseededness are storage, blending, and scarification. As suggested earlier, normal storage from harvest to planting time will reduce hard seed percentages, although the exact results are unpredictable. Blending seed lots of the same variety produced in different areas is a common method of providing seed to the consumer with fewer hard seeds.

If necessary, the number of hard seeds can be reduced by mechanical scarification. This occurs to some degree in the normal process of harvesting and cleaning seed. Beyond this, great care must be used to avoid over-scarification, and the danger of reducing germination and increasing the percentage of abnormal seedlings.

A high percentage of the hard seed coats also are made permeable by the normal freezing and thawing action of the soil during the winter following sowing, as well as by the action of soil organisms and soil acids.

Many other methods to decrease hardseededness have been investigated by researchers, and for species where hard seeds are a special problem, special techniques to reduce hard seeds can be and have been used by the seed industry. However, because of the risks involved, we do not recommend scarification on the farm.

Hard seeds in small seeded legumes are common, but the mechanisms involved are complex. There are many factors that influence the percentage of hard seeds and the degree of hardness, and while excessive amounts of hard seeds, especially in alfalfa, may be a concern, we still feel that hard seeds can be, and are, very beneficial for filling in where old plants disappear.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Pennsylvania Tests Corn For Aflatoxin

HARRISBURG — State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff announced this week that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has begun a testing program to determine if any corn in the state is contaminated with aflatoxin.

Samples of corn from across the commonwealth will be screened in the department's laboratories in Harrisburg. Severe summer drought stressed corn plants, increasing the threat of aflatoxin contamination, which has been detected in the corn harvest of many Midwestern states.

PDA has been testing samples at a rate of 40 per week. Early in the week tests revealed some cause for concern. "We've had some indication that there might be a problem," said Wolff. "Suspicious samples were reported today. (Monday)."

High levels of aflatoxin are suspected of causing liver cancer in humans and, if concentrated, the substance can be poisonous to livestock. Aflatoxin has been detected in this year's corn crop in Iowa and Illinois.

The problem is associated with field corn, not sweet corn. In Pennsylvania, aflatoxin would be a threat to livestock because nearly all of the state's field corn is used to feed livestock.

Wolff advised farmers that the testing would begin on a small scale and would be increased if any problems are detected.

"Many of our farmers have suffered substantial losses because of the drought," Wolff said, "and we want to help them protect their livestock."

SELL IT WITH A LANCASTER FARMING CLASSIFIED

Farm Essentials.

Cows. Crops. And a Scavenger® spreader. The three essentials for higher productivity and a more successful farm operation.

Manure is money.
According to ag experts at the University of Missouri, the average dairy cow produces 70 pounds of manure every day—up to 13 tons a year. Worth about $5.00/ton, that equates to $65.00 per cow a year. If you own a 60-head herd that's almost $4,000 of free fertilizer. And in today's farm environment that adds up to big savings.

Scavenger—good to your crops, good to you.
To get the most from your manure you need a spreader to efficiently manage manure. A spreader that works with you. A spreader designed and built for today's farming. You need a Scavenger.

Scavenger loads quickly and spreads fast. And thanks to advanced engineering, Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. But more importantly, Scavenger's patented moveable square-auger and Variflo discharge combine to let you choose your optimum rate of application—from top dressing to heavy springtime spreading. You get the kind of spreads your crops need—nice and even, without damaging "hotspots". With Scavenger, your crops receive the essential nutrients to produce better yields

See Scavenger for yourself.
Don't be misled by claims of other manufacturer's spreaders that say they do it all. See Scavenger for yourself and compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious—you'll choose Scavenger®.

For a firsthand look at Scavenger, see your local Hedlund/Martin dealer Or for more information write: Hedlund/Martin, Inc., A Gehl Company, 741 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067. Telephone: 717-933-4151

Why is this man so happy?

☐ He just bought a fishing boat with the money he saved on his new M-F 300 Series Tractor.
Could be You see, these 45 to 85 PTO horsepower* tractors aren't loaded down with unnecessary accessories that drive the price up without adding to productivity.
Plus there are Massey-Ferguson financing plans, Service Shield extended warranty and MF Club discounts that drive costs even lower You can't find a better value anywhere

☐ He finally found a tractor his wife will drive.
We're not surprised After all, hydrostatic power steering is standard. Most models feature easy-shifting synchromesh transmissions with 12 speeds. And the optional tight-turning 4-wheel drive makes almost any field seem level and dry

☐ He was able to do more of the servicing himself.
All M-F 300 Series tractors were designed to require less maintenance Plus all filters, pumps and service points are easy to get to.
Of course, if he ever does need parts or dealer servicing, there are none better trained and supported than M-F dealers

☐ His old straw hat tickles.
That's why he should be wearing an M-F cap.
